OUTLINING PLANS FOR CAMPAIGN

Rival Managers of Three-Cornered Contest Make Ready.

SPEAKING DRIVES A FEATURE

Republican, Democratic and Independent Managers Plan to Cover the Entire Country—LaFollette Followers Would Increase Insurgent Strength in Congress—Oratory on Tap After Labor Day.

Washington, July 23.—Rival managers in the triangular contest for the presidency are perfecting plans for the coming campaign.

Speaking drives will start after Labor day, it was announced. Republican campaign plans are undergoing a complete revision at the hands of President Coolidge and Chairman William H. Butler of the Republican national committee. Democratic managers in conference with Clem L. Shaver, prospective chairman of the Democratic national committee, are rapidly working out the details of the intensive speaking tours to be made by John W. Davis, and the independent campaign, headed by Senator La Follette, has begun to take form, including the selection of the committee of 11, which will determine the conduct of the fight.

The unexpected strength which the independent move seems to be gathering is causing the rival managers to make many shifts in their programs. One change calls for expanding the speaking program for President Coolidge. It had been planned to have him make not more than six speeches outside of Washington. Now it seems certain that he will accept invitations to speak in at least a dozen cities in key positions over the country, as far as the northwest, and perhaps one on the Pacific coast.

The Democrats intend to stage a desperate fight throughout the east, particularly in New York, with its 45 electoral votes. They are counting on Governor Al Smith being prevailed upon to reconsider his decision not to run for re-election as governor of New York. Neither is the east being overlooked by the independents. Senator Wheeler, La Follette's running mate, will open his nationwide speaking trip in New York, and La Follette is expected to make several speeches in the east.

Chairman Butler of the Republican national committee issued this statement: "Our friendly enemies desire to make this, as some of them have said, a campaign based on the personality of the candidates. We will be ready. If they desire to base the election on pledges or party records we will not be disturbed."

Butler also announced that a branch office of the party's national headquarters would probably be opened in the west to supplement the national offices to be maintained in Chicago, the eastern headquarters in New York and the Washington office.

Those in charge of Senator La Follette's campaign for president plan to let voters know, well in advance of election day, which congressional candidates they favor. They are to make determined efforts to increase the strength of the insurgent blocs in the house and senate. Senators and representatives who have been in accord with La Follette policies and are up for re-election will be given endorsement, while in some states and districts encouragement will be given "liberal" candidates in the field against members of the senate and house whom the followers of the Wisconsin senator classify as "reactionary."

The acceptance speech of John W. Davis, Democratic nominee, will be brief, it is said. His idea now is to cover the field generally, with emphasis on the more important issues of the day, such as honesty in government, foreign affairs, taxes and tariff and farm relief. The occasion requires the discussion of so many subjects that Mr. Davis can not make his speech as brief as he would like.

Brigadier General Butler Ordered Back to Marine Corps.

Philadelphia, July 23.—Brigadier General Smedley D. Butler, Philadelphia's public safety director, announced that he had been ordered to report for service with the marines at San Diego, Cal., Jan. 11. The order came from Major General LeJue, commander of the marine corps, Butler said. He added that he would go to Washington before Aug. 1 to see General LeJue and take up with him all arrangements for his re-entrance into the service.

TARRIED BY MASKED MEN

Woman Declares She Was Seized by Hooded Band.

St. Clairsville, O., July 23.—Authorities are investigating the story told by Mrs. Esther Sells, 23, who reported that while riding in the country near Morristown she was seized by 12 masked men, bundled into the woods at the roadside and coated with tar. "I was driving through the country with a couple of friends, a girl and a young man," Mrs. Sells said, "when a group of men, all wearing pillow-case hoods, stopped us and dragged me out of the car." Authorities said Mrs. Sells could offer no motive for the act and that apparently she was not injured. After the alleged tar party the men scattered, Mrs. Sells said, and she went back to the auto, where her friends were waiting for her.

CROWE OPENS FOR THE STATE

ARRAY OF WITNESSES CALLED

Big Legal Battle Begins to Determine the Mental Responsibility of the Slayer of Young Franks—State Demands Death Penalty, While Defense Hopes for Mitigation of Youths' Punishment.

Chicago, July 23.—The hearing to determine the mental responsibility of Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, confessed slayers of 14-year-old Robert Franks, opened before Judge Caverly today, with an array of witnesses called by both sides.

It is expected that more than three weeks will be consumed for the hearing. State's Attorney Crowe, in his opening statement today, said he intends to present every bit of evidence collected by the state just as if a jury was hearing the case. The prosecution, which demands the gallows for the two university students, who said they killed for experiment, plans to examine 100 witnesses. The defense, hoping for a life sentence, expects to submit testimony of alienists regarding the mental responsibility of the youths. Only evidence tending to mitigate their punishment can be submitted to the court.

State's Attorney Crowe announced he would summon the bereaved parents, and almost at the same moment Attorney Benjamin Bachrach of defense counsel said he would call the two youths and their parents.

The court has four alternates—a sentence of death, a sentence of life imprisonment, a sentence of 14 years' imprisonment or a sentence of any number of years over 14. The hearing will be exactly like a trial, except that since the boys have already admitted their guilt, there will be no jury and the arguments of the state and defense will be presented to the court only for the purpose of affecting the degree of the sentence.

Clarence Darrow, chief counsel for the defense, explained why he entered the plea of guilty. "It was the only logical thing for us to do," the famous defense attorney said. "Those boys are not fit to mingle in society. Their parents are agreed that their sons should be confined. The defense never did and does not now, of course, have any desire to set them free."

State's Attorney Crowe opened the state's case with an explanation of what he will seek to establish. It was a lengthy statement. He will summon one after another of his witnesses to relate from the witness stand all the events of the kidnapping and killing of Robert Franks.

Drs. James Whitney Hall and William J. Hickson of Chicago, Dr. William A. White of Washington, Dr. Karl Bowman of Boston and Dr. Ralph Hamill are among the mental experts who will take the stand for the defense.

Jacob Franks, father of the slain boy, expressed the hope that the plea of guilty did not mean the slayers would escape actual criminal prosecution. He visited the state's attorney's office after he heard first reports of the action of the defense. "It means something, perhaps, when they admit their guilt," he said. "Now, if ever there was a case on earth demanding the death penalty, it is this one. I have been of the opinion from the start that these boys should be put to death. This talk of insanity is all nonsense."

LYNCHING AVERTED

Two Negroes Suspected of Slaying Young Woman.

Chicago, July 23.—Suspected of slaying Miss Daisy Wilson, 18, in an attempted holdup of her father's store at Villa Ridge, Ill., two negroes were taken to the county jail at Mounds for safekeeping. They opened fire on Wilson and a bullet killed the daughter. A mob of several hundred men, apparently intent on a lynching, was quieted when H. F. Moreland, a Ku Klux Klan organizer, spoke and prayed in front of the city hall. Several in the crowd were deputized by Sheriff I. J. Hudson to guard the prisoners. At first the slain girl's father, J. H. Wilson, who, himself was severely beaten, was not certain that the negroes were the assailants. He became more positive in his identification however, when a neighbor said they were the same negroes he had loitering in the vicinity.

ORDER HITS STEEL CORPORATION

Pittsburgh Plus System Must Be Abandoned.

COMMISSION ISSUES DECREE

Pittsburgh Plus Plan Held to Be an Unfair Method of Competition and a Violation of the Federal Trade Commission Act—Order Expected to Decentralize the Steel Industry. Essence of the Ruling.

Washington, July 23.—An order that may decentralize the steel industry was issued by the federal trade commission.

The United States Steel corporation was directed by the commission to abandon the Pittsburgh plus system of determining the price of steel.

The Pittsburgh plus plan was held by the commission to be an unfair method of competition. The practice was found to be a violation of the federal trade commission act and further to constitute a means of price discrimination in violation of the Clayton act. The commission charged that the system is contrary to the public interest and not based on the law of supply and demand, is a price-fixing system, and that it is made possible by the alleged domination of the steel industry by the steel corporation. It also was held that the Pittsburgh plus system lessens and eliminates competition, retards business in all steel centers except Pittsburgh, and adds greatly to the cost of steel products.

The Pittsburgh plus system is the method by which the United States Steel corporation and its subsidiaries quote prices on rolled steel products manufactured by and shipped from their plants outside Pittsburgh at a Pittsburgh base price plus an amount equivalent to what the freight charge would be from that city. The commission, in its order, forbade the steel corporation or its subsidiaries from quoting any steel price without listing separately the price of the steel and the transportation charge.

The commission believes that the effect of its order will be the building up of all steel producing and consuming sections outside of Pittsburgh; the return to the western and southern steel users of natural advantage of their location; decentralization of the steel industry and industries using steel products, and will enforce price competition among the steel producers.

FEDERALS BOMBARD SAO PAULO CITY

Thousands of Civilians Reported Killed or Injured.

Washington, July 23.—The heaviest fighting of the Sao Paulo revolution took place on Sunday, according to advices received by the state department from Brazil. Current reports at Sao Paulo state that the killed and injured total 3,000 civilians, but no Americans are included in these casualties, the advices continued.

Dispatches from Buenos Ayres say the federal forces started a heavy bombardment of rebel positions in Sao Paulo City Sunday. The federal troops, reinforced until they number more than 25,000, are encircling Sao Paulo City and have brought up big batteries of heavy artillery. Thousands of refugees have fled from Sao Paulo City into the interior, and toward Santos, which is calm.

All railroads leading into Sao Paulo City have been cut and the famous coffee capital now is beleaguered on practically all sides. Big American packing plants in Sao Paulo, including the $20,000,000 Armour plant built during the world war, are reported undamaged.

The revolutionary regime in Sao Paulo, Brazil, has issued a manifesto declaring fighting must continue until President Bernardes agrees to resign and full suffrage is re-established.

FOUR LOST LIVES

Newport, R. I., July 23.—Four lives were lost when the Eastern Steamship company's liner Boston was rammed by an oil tanker near the entrance to Block Islandsound. Five hundred passengers were rescued in small boats and brought into this port on the steamer Priscilla.

The victims were: Mrs. Oscar Green, Brooklyn; Charles O. Copeland, Brookline, Mass.; John P. Schlemm, New York, and Robert P. Schlemm, Boston, brothers.

The oil tanker Swift Arrow, out of Fall River, bound for San Francisco, which crashed into the Boston in a dense fog, was able to make port under her own power.

The Boston, which left Boston for New York, was nosing her way cautiously southwestward, a short distance off Point Judith, R. I., in a dense blanket of fog when the accident occurred. The oiler loomed suddenly out of the darkness, according to first reports and struck the Boston amidships, tearing a hole in her side.

Despite the confusion that followed immediately upon the crash, transfer of passengers to the tanker, which was not badly damaged, began.

Burke Attacks "Bosses."

Urbana, O., July 23.—State Senator J. F. Burke, candidate for Republican nomination for governor, attacked Republican "bosses" in his speech here. He charged them with attempting to control the Republican party in Ohio and the state government for their own ends. Declaring his independence of the "bosses" and pledging himself to keep the "bosses' spoils system" out of the state government, if he is elected, Burke asserted he was under obligations to none of them.

COURTS AN INQUIRY

Harper Says He Is Ready to Assist the State Auditor.

Columbus, July 23.—Welfare Director Harper promised co-operation in the event that State Auditor J. T. Tracy decides to make an investigation of the purchase by the department of public welfare of the plant of the Tri-Country Brick company at Roseville, Muskingum county.

In sending the requisition for a vouchers for $35,000 in full payment for the plant to the state auditor, Director Harper also sent a letter in which he stated that he had read of the probable intentions of the state auditor to hold up the voucher until an investigation had been made as to whether the state had been "stung," as charged by the Republican state committee press department. "Such an investigation upon your part, or made by those you deem qualified to pass upon the property, meets with my approval, and I think that in view of the charges made by the Republican state committee there should be no delay in the same, should you so decide."

FIRST FLOATING FAIR SENT OUT BY GERMANY

Pilgrimage to Ports of Europe, Asia and Africa.

Hamburg, Germany.—The first German floating fair will leave Hamburg July 30 on a voyage which will occupy ten months and take the fairship, "Industria I," as far east as Yokohama.

The ship is to give testimony to postwar German enterprise, and is to carry the "Made in Germany" label to distant points of Europe, and to Asia and Africa. If the experiment proves successful a second ship is to be outfitted for a trip to North and South America.

There will be room for 750 exhibitors on this floating fair ground, and in addition to a printing shop, banking facilities, stenographic rooms, post and telegraph, film and magic lantern service and a news bureau. The fair service is to show German places of interest, especially industrial towns and industrial processes.

It is planned that the floating fair shall stop from three to eight days in every harbor visited. The route is as follows: Helsingfors, Stockholm, Copenhagen, Southampton, Lisbon, Malaga, Barcelona, Palermo, Naples, Piraeus, Constantinople, Smyrna, Jaffa, Alexandria, Port Said, Aden, Karachi, Bombay, Colombo, Madras, Calcutta, Rangoon, Penang, Delhi, Singapore, Batavia, Soerabaya, Macassar, Bangkok, Manila, Canton, Shanghai, Tsingtau, Kobe, Vladivostok, Osaka and Yokohama.

Hungry Jellyfish Drive

Herring From North Sea

Bremerhaven.—European ichthyologists have become greatly exercised by the diminished numbers of haddock and herring in the North sea, from which various other countries obtain their principal fish supplies.

Several conferences have been held by those interested in the fish industry to consider what steps may be taken to remedy the situation. The herring began to disappear three years ago, and the haddock some months later.

Fish experts attribute the diminished numbers to incredibly large schools of jellyfish and various forms of sea nettle which were swept in from the Atlantic ocean in 1920, when several changes were reported in the different Atlantic currents.

The jellyfish came in a flood of warm water and made themselves at home at once, consuming the food of the herring in such great amounts that the herring were unable to subsist. When they began to disappear the haddock, too, began gradually to diminish, as it is upon the eggs of the herring that the haddock exists during a great part of the year.

German Scientists Find

Hoof-and-Mouth Germ

Berlin, Germany.—Bacteriologists throughout Europe have been interested in the recent announcement here of the discovery of a bacillus capable of reproducing the hoof-and-mouth disease in animals. Specialists have come to Berlin to investigate further, while there have been many letters and cablegrams from the United States and England, where there have been epidemics this spring. News of the discovery came from Prof. Paul Frosch of the Royal Veterinary college, who has been working on the problem several years in conjunction with Professor Dahmer.

The new bacillus has not yet been subjected to sufficient confirmatory tests to make it possible to say positively that it is the final solution of the difficulty, but medical journals in Germany and England have written enthusiastic articles about it, and various authorities have ventured to predict that this enthusiasm has not been misplaced.

According to writers on veterinary subjects in these periodicals, the hoof-and-mouth disease is supposed to have been a European malady for more than 2,000 years, though it was not until the Seventeenth and Eighteenth centuries that positive proof of its presence was found.

Alaska's Brown Bears

Lure Hosts of Hunters

The Alaska peninsula is, without doubt, the best big bear country in the world today, although in sections where a hunter, five years ago, would get from twenty to fifty pelts in a season, these animals are extinct. In secluded areas on the Bering sea side the brown grizzlies are found in great numbers. Trappers arriving here tell of having sighted twenty to forty bears in a single day's march.

The range and distribution of the Alaskan grizzly is for the most part through the coastal country from Icy straits, near here, along Prince William sound, Kodiak and other islands, the entire Alaskan peninsula and along Bristol bay and Bering sea. In fact, the big brown bears are found where salmon abound.

The results of the de luxe bear chase are the finest pelts for rugs, robes or coats. Attractive trophies of mounted heads and claws are brought home to adorn offices and smoking dens. The short season when the hides are well furred assures the crop for many generations, provided, of course, that salmon and other food for the animals continues abundant.

ALONG LIFE'S TRAIL

THE DRY GOODS CLERK

EACH of us cherishes a secret ambition, I have no doubt. Our hired man, who never succeeded in writing a complete sentence, and who would not have recognized a joke if he had met one face to face, confessed to me once that he'd "like to run one of them funny coles in a daily newspaper," and Fenton, my neighbor who weighs 300 pounds and has never been able to learn how to navigate a Ford, admitted that he'd like best of all to be an aviator.

As for myself, perfect bliss has always seemed to me incarnate in the young fellow who sold things in a dry goods and gents' furnishing store. If I could ever have helped out with the Christmas trade at Gulick's who ran such an emporium in our village, I should have been content, and asked for nothing in my Christmas stocking. But such joy has always been denied me.

Herb Weston had charge of the "gents' furnishings" in the store, and he was to me the last word in sartorial perfection, and the object of my secret envy. He was plump and impressive of physique, and his clothes were without a wrinkle. He was considered the social dictator of the village. He affected spats and a cut-away coat buttoned over a gloriously brocaded vest. His socks were radiant; but the crowning feature of his attire was a large pearl pin stuck at a rakish angle through his cravat. It seemed to my boyish eyes priceless and unattainable. I have since, in Rome, bought a handful of similar jewels for three lire.

Young girls adored Herb; young men envied him. He had such self-possession, such assurance, such perfection of appearance and such opulence. His salary, I was told, was $40 a month! It seemed incredible.

I was too much of a yokel for him to give me a thought. I came from the farm and my clothes were common and ill-fitting. He laughed at me one day as he saw me mounting Moses, our old gray horse, who was covered with mud from rolling in the street while I had been making some purchases in the store.

His cynical smile chilled me. That was the end of my ambition. I realized with a sad heart that it was far too high for my attainment and future events have proved that I was right. I have had to be contented with a humble lot.

Charming White Flannel Suit for Summer Wear

Parasols Are Much in Summer Fashion Picture

There has been a change of sentiment regarding the charm of a tanned complexion, and parasols are having a sweeping vogue, observes a fashion authority in the New York Times. All of the new modes in gowns, the latest patterns, colors, even materials, are repeated in the latest parasols received from Paris. There are taffeta silks, in plain colors, plaids, checks and stripes. In some models a plaid and plain silk are used in alternate bands around the parasol. There are crepes in plain colors and printed in all the new patterns; in floral designs, basket, conventional.

The covering of one new parasol is an especially drawn design, cubist in character, in black, white and rose, with a tracery of gold. The picturesque sunshades shown earlier for the Palm Beach season are in evidence in variations. A white silk shade on sticks of white bamboo tipped with ivory has a sea gull in natural grays, white and black painted across the top.

Pongee parasols are new and summery. Most are shown in the natural shade, many with a border of colored velvet ribbon two or three inches wide. In these are also pretty shades of green, orange and red, each with a border of contrasting color, oftenest black.

To carry with the light summer dresses are charming parasols of ribbon. A Parisian novelty is made of wide rainbow ribbon in slightly gathered ruffles. Another is covered with frills of narrow ribbon and one other with small frills of valenciennes lace. Flowered chiffons in the sweetest patterns and colors cover some of the white silk parasols. Frame and stick are of white enamel or light wood and colored enamel. Quartz, agate, jade, amber, coral, onyx or gold delicately chased or finely carved wood are used in the handles.

Straight-Line Coat Is Decree of Today's Mode

The coat may be cloth or silk. It may be full length or it may stop several inches short of the skirt hem, but it must be straight of line, asserts a fashion writer.

And with only these few qualifications to fill, there are left to the clever designer numberless original treatments which go to make the wrap a thing of individual style.

She may introduce clever flounce effects or she may achieve a coat as slim and straight as a die. Her trimming mediums, though sparingly applied, may be chosen from a remarkably wide range.

There are deep, wrappy collars; there are even fur collars for summer coats. Then there is the scarf finish. The scarf may be of material matching the coat and attached to it. Or it may decide to offer a contrasting note and bring in some soft color combination or a gayly printed motif.

The lining itself is always decorative, whether it offers a plain color contrast or sprinkles some vivid pattern over a plain colored background.

Women Denounced Coffee

In "the women's petition against coffee," 1674, they complained that "it made men as unfruitful as the deserts whence that unhappy berry is said to be brought!" That the "offspring of their mighty ancestors would dwindle into a succession of apes and pigmies" and that on a domestic message a husband would "stop by the way to drink a couple of cups of coffee."

Strange Occupation

A man died in England the other day who for nearly fifty years had served as a "smeller" in a brewery. For a half-century this man gave his life to sniffing at empty beer barrels, thousands of them every week, and rejecting the "stinkers." What a critic he would have made if his fastidious taste had had ampler scope!

First U. S. Patent

The first United States patent was granted to a descendant of a Waterbury (Conn.) miller. The second was granted to a resident of Waterbury, and the number of patents now issued to people of that city is about double that which might be expected from the population.

Woman and Home

"Home," says the Newcastle (Pa.) Courier, "is a place where a woman, in about fifteen seconds can find something for which a man has searched one hour."

Why beat a year's wear out of your rugs; send them to Barnhill's have them thoroly cleaned and colors returned bright and new. Call

HERRICK REFRIGERATORS

The Big Difference In Refrigerators

The main object of any refrigerator, of course, is the preservation of foods. The refrigerator that will keep foods in perfect condition longest is naturally the refrigerator you want—provided it doesn't increase your ice bills.

The Herrick answers those requirements with facts—not claims. And it does even more. It actually decreases your ice bills while giving you more effective food preservation.

And why? Simply because the Herrick is far more than an ice box—far more than a cold storage place. It is built on the scientifically demonstrated principle that more than merely cold air is necessary to keep foods in good condition for any great length of time.

Perhaps the biggest essentials to scientifically correct refrigeration are—

- No. 1. Circulation of cold dry air.
- No. 2. Effective Insulation.
- No. 3. Air-tight construction.

That the Herrick has these necessary essentials is a demonstrated fact.

Many proofs of the truth are visible even to the least informed purchaser. Others are hidden within the walls of the refrigerator, but nevertheless there, performing their functions so important to good health and economy.

If you have a hammer the head of which keeps flying off, sandpaper the handle, replace the head, drive in wedges in the usual "H" form, and then boll the hammer slowly in linseed oil for about three hours. FIND UNKNOWN RIVER IN NORTHERN ALASKA

Interesting Letter Tells Life in Far North.

Washington, D. C.—The story of an explorer's life in the northern Alaskan wilderness and the discovery of uncharted streams is contained in a letter brought back to civilization by an Eskimo from the geological survey party headed by Dr. Philip S. Smith and made public by the Interior department. The expedition is exploring naval petroleum reserve No. 4.

In exploring the Colville river, the letter, written March 30, states that Doctor Smith found a river about 200 yards wide, which flows westward and then turns northward. The party plans to continue the river explorations, but they must reach the coast in time to catch the last ship out of the Arctic ocean before the September freeze.

Find Grove of Willows.
The party has established a base camp at the head of the Unakserak river about ten miles from the divide between the Unakserak and Colville rivers, at latitude 67:45:30, at an altitude of 2,200 feet. On this divide the party has discovered groves of willow trees as large as a man's wrist, which they are using for fuel.

The letter explained that the supporting party of seven men and 120 dogs turned back on March 16, and the main expedition was proceeding with three sleds and thirty-three dogs. The sleds soon will be abandoned, and the journey continued in canoes on the Colville river.

The letter, which was written by Dr. J. B. Mertie, Jr., gives the following description:
"During the summer, I have been engaged chiefly in making astronomical observations with the transit. I have seven good observations on latitude and azimuth, which check one another very well.

Able to Find the Time.
"Having my azimuth, I also have local time from transits of the sun. And what with watches, and their known ratings, we are in a position to make a fair computation of longitude. I am, also able to rate our watches from successive transits of the sun, day after day at this camp.

"Such diversion keeps me very busy, and the days pass very quickly. Once in a while, say once a day, when it gets too cold sitting in the tent, I warm up by cutting wood for a half hour or an hour. All of us are well. None of us have been seriously frost-bitten yet, and I think the most severe weather of the winter is past now. So, all in all, everything is going fine, and the success of the expedition seems assured. Just tell that to the doubters."

Asks Fifteen Years' Wages From Stepfather's Estate
Columbus, Ohio.—Milking cows, cleaning the barn and tilling the field for 15 years without compensation. That is what Margaret Hallen charges in a petition filed in common pleas court, asking that she be made a beneficiary in the estate of her stepfather, William Welsch.

Miss Hallen says when she was twelve years old her mother married Welsch. He promised, she alleges, to give her a third interest in his estate if she would do chores on the farm. At his death, she says, her mother, as executrix, sought to carry out the agreement, but Welsch's son, Henry S., protested. The estate is valued at $9,540.

Savants to Visit Lapps
Gothenburg.—The Lapps, mysterious nomads of the North, are again to be studied by scientists. Dr. G. Clyde-Fisher, of the Museum of Natural History, New York, is now here on his way to Swedish Lapland to observe the love, customs and daily life of these people.

Doubting Banks, Keep $400,000,000 in Socks
Washington.—In the collective ginger jars and stockings of the United States there is a total of more than $400,000,000 jealously hoarded away, according to estimates by Joseph S. McCoy, United States treasury actuary, for the current issue of the American Bankers' Association Journal.

Eight thousand Americans may safely be put in the miser class, McCoy believes. They just like to see their money and gloat over it and call it pet names, and among them they are keeping $44,000,000 out of circulation.

Then there are the children's banks. Probably 2,500,000 kids have such banks, and there is perhaps an average of 60 cents in each, making a total of $1,500,000 thus hoarded away. McCoy doesn't go so far as to charge the kids with wanting to let their money stay in the pin-proof receptacles.

About half of the entire hoarded wealth of the United States is in the cupboards and under the mattresses of foreign-born residents, who aren't yet used to banks. And farmers are hoarding a total of $125,000,000, McCoy says.

BANQUET AT LAURELVILLE

Chamber of Commerce Visited the Village Tuesday Evening.

Tecumseh Floyd and Major Floyd Were Speakers—Karl Hermann and Miss Mary Pickens Had Charge of Music—W. F. Cellar, Master of Ceremonies.

The chamber of commerce visited Laurelville Tuesday evening accompanied by their ladies, and were welcomed by Charles White and W. F. DeHaven, a committee representing the business men of the metropolis of Saltcreek Valley.

A banquet was given at the community house and a very enjoyable time was had. Wilson F. Cellar was master of ceremonies. Karl Hermann and Miss Mary Pickens had charge of the music and Samuel Grant and Elmer Wolf were the entertainment committee. A bountiful and appetizing meal was spread before the crowd to which all did ample justice. Tecumseh Floyd, gave the address of welcome and told the visitors that he was glad they came down to the Gem City of the hills. He said that if the chamber of commerce did nothing else, they certainly did one good thing when their influence was given to having the Circleville-Laurelville pike taken over by the state and county and having it improved.

The speaker's son, Major Oliver Floyd, who has been in the regular army for the past fifteen years and who is now home on a furlough, was the next speaker. Major Floyd told his audience that in this last war this country was totally unprepared for contingencies. The spending of fifteen billions of dollars was one of the most wasteful expenditures of money made by a nation in modern times.

He touched on the military training of the green soldier and the work it required to make a soldier out of the raw material.

MEMBERSHIP HONORS
Captured by Ohio Building and Loan Associations.
Cleveland, July 23.—Total membership of Ohio building and loan associations is now 1,375,968 and total assets are $648,160,960.

This was revealed in the annual report of H. F. Cellarius of Cincinnati, national secretary of the United States League of Local Building and Loan associations, in session here.

Pennsylvania made the largest increase in assets during the last fiscal year, with a total increase of $121,000,000. Ohio was second with an increase of $83,812,433. The greatest increase in membership during the past year was shown by Ohio, with 206,140 new members.

Building and loan companies in the United States advanced more than $1,260,000,000 last year on mortgage security towards the building of homes throughout the country. "Assuming that the average loan made was about $3,500," Mr. Cellarius said, "our associations financed approximately 360,000 homes."

Said to Have Slain Father.
Hudson, Wis., July 23.—In an alleged confession Walter Kruger is said by authorities to have admitted killing his father with an iron bar, because "he was always swearing around the house." The body was found buried in an abandoned hog pen.

Firpo to Meet Wills.
New York, July 23.—Luis Angel Firpo, Argentine heavyweight boxer, signed a contract for his bout with Harry Wills. The contract provides that the fight shall not be held before Aug. 30 and that Firpo must meet no other fighter until he boxes Wills. Firpo said he was considering White Sulphur Springs at Saratoga, and Summit, N. J., as sites for his training camps.

Indorse La Follette.
New York, July 23.—Representatives of 300,000 trade unionists and Socialists, meeting here, endorsed the presidential ticket of Senator La Follette, with his running mate, Senator Wheeler. The delegates, numbering 450, announced they expected to raise $500,000 for the La Follette campaign.

Desert and Jungle
In the driest and hottest region in the United States—southwestern Arizona—there is a combined desert and jungle, according to the report of a survey of the Gila river region. The region is called an "arboreal" desert by Clyde P. Ross, Interior department engineer. Underground water enables an abundant flora to survive under the burning desert sunshine.

CHURCH PICNIC

Good Fishing and Swimming—Supper Served at Six O'clock.

The Presbyterian picnic will be held tomorrow, Thursday afternoon, at the Joseph Shortridge farm northwest of town. Machines will leave the church at one o'clock. The committee in charge has arranged for transportation for all as well as for safety in the water. Plenty of blue grass, shade, water and open air will furnish the setting necessary for all that goes with a picnic. Supper will be served at six o'clock in order to give the men who must work in the afternoon a chance to be on hand for the big end of the day. Cars will be at the church for late comers at 5:45. We are told that the fishing as well as the swimming is good. All members and friends of the church are invited to bring baskets and join in the good time.

Father and Children
For he who has acquired the habit of lying or deceiving his father will do the same with less remorse to others. I believe that it is better to bind your children to you by a feeling of respect, and by gentleness, than by fear.—Terrance.

John Hillary, better known as "Cyclone" Swain, was in the city Tuesday seeing the newspapers on writing baseball articles. If there is any one that knows more about the diamond that "Cyclone" Swain he will have to go some. When his six feet of avoirdupois stood in the pitcher's box for the Washington D. BIG DABBY
Big Darby Athletics lost one of the best played games of the season to the Miller Grocers Sunday 6 to 4. The game was hard fought and exciting all the way thru; the fourth inning being the only scoreless one. Downs pitched a splendid game for Darbys after being on the sick list for two days. He struck out nine. Rohrer was the leading hitter getting three safeties in three times up. Tharp got a double and homer while Neff hit a double and single. Big Darbys will play the fast National Billiards next Sunday at Darbyville.

AMUSEMENTS

A domestic melodrama of the finest story of human strength and weakness is the Paramount picture, "His Children's Children," which opened at the Met theater last evening. The production, with Bebe Daniels, Dorothy Mackaill, James Rennie and George Fawcett in featured roles, is an adaptation by Monte M. Katterjohn of a new novel by Arthur Train and it was excellently produced by Sam Wood.

The story is one of a multi-millionaire railroad magnate who on his fifty fifth birthday anniversary comes to the decision, that he is going to "lay off." His three daughters, Diana, Sheila and Claudia, have become almost strangers in his household. Always on the go, Diana and Sheila, for Claudia has been unfortunate in her marriage with a scapegrace Englishman, find little, if any time to devote to household duties. They are ultra-modern young women with but one aim in life, enjoyment, found thru the artificial channels of dope, Greenwich Village and the like. Peter B. Kayne, the old grandfather, is unable to restrain them.

Financial reverses revolutionize the Kayne household and it is then that the girls 'come to.' Diana in particular, becomes quite domesticated, happy in the love of Lloyd Maitland, played by James Rennie. Bebe Daniels portrays the role of Diana while Dorothy Mackaill is cast as the wayward Sheila. George Fawcett has the excellent character part of old Peter B. himself. Among the more prominent players in the supporting cast are Hale Hamilton, Mary Eaton, Mahlon Hamilton, Warner Oland, Lawrence D'Orsay and John Davidson. "His Children's Children" is an extremely powerful production and one that is sure to strike home anywhere. It is a delightful story of everyone's home and family and you'll enjoy it immensely.

Power of Eagle's Grip

Two brothers of West Boothbay, Maine, while in a boat, picked up a white-headed eagle that had been shot through one of its wings, leaving it helpless in the water. They put the bird in the dory and he gripped the wood so tightly that they had to pry its talons open to make the transfer from one boat to another. They called a veterinary surgeon in an attempt to save the bird's life.

YOUNG MINDS

Children Should be Given Vigorous Diet in Their Reading.

Give the children something to read. Their brains need something to feed on even as much as their bodies do.

That message has been sent to Ohio county agents in the July issue of Fax, a special publication sent to county agents from the Ohio State university. Along with the message is a list of children's magazines compiled by Professor and Mrs. C. E. Lively of the College of Agriculture.

"It is a well-established fact that the country is not well supplied with good magazine literature especially adapted to children," they write. "The farmer usually takes plenty of newspapers and is also well supplied with farm papers. There are also papers for the farm woman, tho not nearly so many. But aside from the comic sheet of the newspaper and a few special columns in the farm paper, the children are not well supplied."

"Nor is this material well adapted to child life. Children need an abundance of good reading well illustrated, especially between the ages of learning to read and the middle teens. Children's magazines offer one of the best methods of meeting that need."

For smaller children the magazines recommended contain stories, legends, fables, rhymes and jingles, games and pastimes, departments of handwork, music and verse, construction work and puzzles. All are well illustrated and well printed. The magazines for older children carry more fiction stories of adventure and travel, puzzles, collections, athletics, camping, plays and stunts, nature and science, and current events.

Swine Tuberculosis Blamed on Poultry

Disposal of Old Fowls Will Eliminate Danger.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In some localities poultry is largely responsible for tuberculosis infection among swine, according to the findings of the United States Department of Agriculture. Although scientific and laboratory studies of the different types of tuberculosis have thus far not yielded definite information as to the degree in which the various types of tubercle bacilli affect animals of different species, field reports show clearly that swine are susceptible to infection from both poultry and bovine sources. The infection in a given locality may be from either one or the other source, or from both.

Tuberculosis in fowls occurs chiefly among the older birds, especially those more than two years old. The most conspicuous symptom is "going light," meaning as the name indicates, a rapid loss of weight, especially the emaciation of the breast muscles. Other symptoms are lameness and ruffled plumage. On post-mortem examination tuberculous fowls usually show whitish, grayish, or yellowish spots on internal organs, notably the liver. The prompt disposal of old fowls will eliminate most of the tuberculous infection, but when serious on the farm it is advisable to dispose of the entire flock, to disinfect the poultry houses and premises thoroughly, and then to introduce new stock known to be healthy. Dead fowls should be burned or buried—never fed to hogs.

Only High-Quality Eggs Will Bring Top Prices

If eggs are dirty don't wash them, because washed eggs deteriorate more rapidly than unwashed, and detection of a few washed eggs may cause buyers to penalize the entire lot.

Unusually large quantities of washed eggs are reported this spring, according to the Department of Agriculture. Although dirty eggs are discounted in price, washing eggs will generally cause producers a greater loss.

Only clean, unwashed, high-quality eggs bring top prices. Production of clean eggs is accomplished by keeping hen house floors and nests clean, gathering the eggs daily and keeping the laying hens during muddy weather in dry quarters until afternoons when most of the eggs will have been laid. Producers will find it more profitable to use the soiled eggs on the farm, and to market only the best quality product, the department says.

Qualities Required by Standard Bronze Turkey

A standard bronze turkey should be in color a rich, lustrous hue, which glistens in the sunlight like burnished gold. On the back each feather has a narrow black band, which extends across the end. The primary or flight feathers are black or dark brown, pencilled with white or gray, the colors changing to a bronzy brown. The wing-bows are black, with a brilliant bronze or greenish luster, wing centers bronze, the feathers terminating with a wide, black band. The tail is black and each feather is pencilled with narrow bands of light brown, ending in a broad, black band, with a wide edge of dull white or gray. The legs in the young are usually dark or black, changing with age to a dusky or pinkish purple.

Feed Value of Skimmilk

One hundred pounds of skim milk from a feeding value standpoint only are equal to about 10½ pounds of corn and 7¼ pounds of tankage. However, skim milk when fed to young animals, such as pigs, in addition to the feed value, has other properties. In the first place, skim milk is a product manufactured by nature and is intended for young animals. It is entirely digestible and contains vitamins that are necessary for the growth and health of animals.

FARM NOTES

Flowers help make a house a home.

Be sure that growing poultry is not crowded.

Gather eggs twice daily. Take them to market at least two times a week.

Good seed is as necessary for good yield and good quality of potatoes as in any other crop.

No other crop will yield so much with so little effort in 25 years as will a crop of timber on "useless" land.

Over-pasturing has done inestimable damage to our pastures. Let's stop doing it. Why not let at least a portion of your native grass pasture rest this year?

The Colorado potato beetle is controlled by spraying with two pounds of powdered arsenate of lead to 50 gallons of water. This spray should be put on when the insects first appear. The various worms that feed on the leaves of cabbage can also be controlled by this spray.

Longest Railroad in World

The longest line of railroad in the world is the Trans-Siberian. It runs from Leningrad to Vladivostok, a distance of over 5,500 miles. The largest system of railways operated under one management is the Canadian National. Its total mileage is over 22,000. The largest railway system in the United States is the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul with a total mileage of over 15,000.

Clever Trick of Fox That Fooled Hounds

A reader sends us this account of a bit of strategy on the part of a fox that he saw when he was a boy in Fayette county, Pennsylvania: "One summer day father and mother and I hitched up the horses and took a ride down to a neighbor's. After dinner I walked to the sugar camp and, as the day was bright and warm, I lay down under a tree on the hillside. I was very quiet; the ground squirrels were playing round; then I saw partridges and their young.
"While I was watching I heard hounds barking. Soon afterward a large red fox came into sight. He would stop and look back and then run on a piece and stop and look back again. About fifty feet below me was a large rock. The fox stopped and looked at it; then he looked back and, taking a run, lit upon the rock. There he sat and watched the hounds, but when they came to where he had left the ground they lost the trail and began to hunt round for it. When they were on the back trail the fox gave another leap and landed away from the rock. The hounds heard him alight, and they came back, but the fox was sitting on the hill, watching them. They did not find his trail, and it seemed as if he were laughing and saying to himself:
"I fooled them that time!"—

Pocket Sundials Once Carried Like Watches

It was not uncommon in the days of Queen Elizabeth for men to carry pocket sundials for the purpose of time telling.
Dials of all kinds were common then, though previous to that time they had been little used in this country, says London Tit-Bits. One of the oldest, erected about the time of Edward the Confessor, is still to be seen over the south door of Kirkdale church, in Yorkshire. It bears the inscription: "This is the sun's marker at every hour, and Hayward made me and Brand the priest."
The fashion for dials began to spread until the whole countryside, particularly in the North and in Scotland, was dotted with them. We see them today in interesting forms at St. Andrews, Melville house, Holyrood castle, Dundas castle, and many other places which are popular resorts of sight-seers.
The legends engraved on some of these old dials are very quaint. One, humble in its opinion of itself and mankind, announces: "Shadows we are, like shadows we depart."
In China and Japan small dials made of boxwood are still carried and consulted by their owners.

Germans Tire of "Joke"

Irritated by the large number of foreign letters bearing the words "Don't Steal" the German postmaster general has announced that these will not be delivered in the future unless they really contain money. If they do not, he rules, such markings constitute "embezzlement." Thefts of notes sent from abroad to poor relatives in Germany became so common during the inflation period that foreigners developed the habit of placing warnings on the outside of letters. Temptation was put constantly before postal employees, as they were obliged to open all incoming letters suspected of containing money in order to trace the receivers and submit them to proper financial control.

Penny Centuries Old

A silver penny struck during the reign of Ethelred II, the Unready, 979-1016, at Sudbury, where at that time there was a royal mint, has been presented to the borough by the town clerk, Mr. T. Miles Braithwaite. It passed into his possession several years ago, and he has ascertained on high authority that it is genuine. The coin has been deposited in the borough technical institute.

Machine Digs Graves

An electrically-driven machine that will dig graves was invented by a Seattle (Wash.) sexton. With a huge auger running inside a casing the dirt is elevated to a carry belt that brings it to the surface. It is claimed that a grave can be excavated in 15 minutes.

"Why Eddie darling—don't you ever read the papers?"

"VIOLET ACRES" THEIR TEA-ROOM

By MYRTA DAVIES
(©, 1924, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

GRETTA RAYMOND and Sibyl Kent had always lived across the stone wall from each other, and from the time they were five that wall had been an invitation to one or the other of them to jump over and play in the garden on the other side. There were roses in Gretta's garden, and in Sibyl's ferns and English violets and a great many trees.
When the girls graduated from high school at Seventeen, Sibyl was valedictorian, and Gretta, popular as a Christmas tree and as decked with tinsel, didn't even have an essay. "Slow and steady," the boys called Sibyl, but they asked Gretta to go to the parties. Even her brother, Tom, said she was a good sport.
Sibyl couldn't go to college. Instead, she stayed at home. Sibyl wanted to be friendly, but she didn't have Gretta's knack. "You have to know how, I guess," Sibyl admitted to Gretta one day. "I love folks, but they don't know it."
"I don't care a snap about them, and they don't know that," Gretta had laughed back. You're a simp, Sib, for a fact. And we really can't expect to see each other much after I go away to college. We'll be in a different class more than ever, don't you see?"
Sibyl saw.
The day Gretta actually started bag and baggage for the classiest college in the East Sibyl took over a box of her choicest home-made bonbons tied with purple and gold and an exquisite spray of dark purple violets in a bowl of white tissue and ribbons.
All Gretta said was "Thanks. Working your violets overtime, aren't you? Suppose you'll be calling your tea-room 'Violet Acres' next, won't you?"
A new independence born that instant in Sibyl's disappointed heart answered, "We hadn't decided, mother and I, but, thank you, Gretta. I believe that's the very name we want. Good-by and good luck."
So "Violet Acres" the tea-room became, and flourished; and on the opposite corner of the lot, Daniel Kent's garage opened at about the same time, grew and flourished.
Cottages began to go up on the opposite shore of the lake, and the cottagers didn't want to cook. Then began the Kents' sent-out meals, whose fame spread till three more helpers were added to the tea-room force and Sibyl asked wistfully, "Some time, maybe, college, father?" And Daniel Kent said: "You're pretty useful here, daughter. Couldn't get along without you. But we'll see."
Vacations, spring, summer and Christmas, were times of revelry at the Raymonds'—revelry in which Sibyl was never asked to share.
"She's just the tea-room girl," Gretta explained to her friends.
"All-fired good-looker," Tom suggested on one of these occasions. "She's got the business end of that tea-room and—friends. Say! Folks know she's with 'em, and it takes!"
"As a business proposition, I suppose it is sound," said Gretta snippily. "Oh, you cat!" Tom retorted. And he did not remind his sister that she herself had flunked every exam at college and would without doubt have to take her freshman year over; neither did he tell her all in regard to Sibyl that he might have told her.
The day came when Daniel Kent said, "We've got a good start, thanks in good part to your brain and brawn, daughter, and there isn't any reason why you can't go to college this fall."
"I shall take the exams for the sophomore class," said Sibyl steadily. She took them and passed, and became a member of Gretta Raymond's class at the university. Gretta had barely passed. Sibyl had come across with flying colors.
There were roses at college commencement, three years later, deep red and white and crimson. Gretta, by popular vote the most popular girl in the college, was showered with them at the class banquet.
The cheers died away and the toast-master rose for the last class vote. "To the best friend in all the world. Little friend of all of us," she introduced the toast, "Little friend of all of us. Shy till you knew her, but always a friend—Sibyl Kent."
Violets fell in purple showers sweet as spring rain round the surprised, grateful face, and, seeing his sister Gretta's face that night, Tom Raymond withheld the previous news that little Sibyl Kent had promised to marry him, after she'd helped her father and mother build the new tea-room.
It was toward the end of the summer after graduation that Gretta herself crossed the wall between the rose garden and the garden of violets and ferns and fine old trees.
"I'm sorry," she told Sibyl out of the clear sky of a summer's thinking over things. "I've been a snob. Popularity doesn't count for much, does it? It goes. Show me how to be a friend. I reckon loving folks is the secret. You said so once. I'd like to help in your tea-room, if you'll let me. Couldn't I serve creams or something? And, Sibyl, I've set out a row of English violets along our side of the wall. Won't they sort of make our places belong together? Dad bought the plants."
So the wall became again an invitation to the Kents and the Raymonds, and the violets grew shyly fragrant on both sides of the wall.

LEACH MOTOR CAR CO.

In the four-cylinder field, the good Maxwell is now duplicating the revolutionary results which the Chrysler Six has already registered among the sixes.

That in brief is the story of the recent developments which, in my opinion, now stamp the Maxwell a most remarkable four-cylinder car.

These new results are so vital and so valuable that they put the good Maxwell far beyond your previous conception of four-cylinder possibilities.

Have you ever driven a four-cylinder car in which the last noticeable trace of vibration is gone?

I don't know that you can appreciate how much this means in new steering, handling and riding ease and far longer life, unless you experience it in the good Maxwell yourself.

As you go along, you will find the Maxwell riding the way you thought only far heavier cars could ride, and displaying a nimbleness that makes you wonder why anyone wants more than Maxwell gives.

Now turn to the other side—costs and upkeep and so on, which are materially reduced by the unusually high proportion of costly alloy steels.

You may not know that Maxwell owners are now averaging 24 miles per gallon of gasoline.

There are a dozen other things I could tell about, but do you know of any four that matches up to Maxwell in these respects?

INJUNCTION

Mary Bennett, Sophia O'Day, Mary F. McClimans, Laura B. Heath and Mrs. Charles H. May, thru their attorney, Charles H. May, of this city, have brought civil action in the common pleas courts of Madison county against the trustees of Pleasant cemetery.

This burial place is located in Darby township, this county, and Pleasant township, Madison county and the action is brought to enjoin the trustees from removing or defacing a marble or granite fence surrounding the burial lot of William Bennett and family. The action also asks the court to enjoin the trustees from lowering the lot from 18 inches to two feet to the level of the surrounding lots or land.

On the Bennett lot are two very large monuments and it is feared that if the land level is lowered that it will undermine these monuments. The Bennett estate left $300 to the cemetery trustees as a perpetual fund for the care and maintenance and ornamentation of this burial lot. A restraining order was granted by Judge Hornbeck.

Alwilda Carpenter, wife of Scott Carpenter, has thru her attorney, A. T. Cordray, brought a similar suit against the trustees to restrain them from removing monuments and ornaments from the burial lot of her parents. Mr. and Mrs. Milton M. Thomas. This lot is surrounded with a fence of marble pillars connected up with a canalized chain.

Both of the suits were precipitated by the work of the trustees; J. L. Bowers, Scott Redman and Frank Winfough, together with the sexton, Job Renick, of Pleasant cemetery, when they removed some of the ornaments on the burial lot of the heirs of Frank Hicks. Some of these ornaments have been on the Hicks lot for the past fifty years.

Liquor Case Reversed.

In the case of the state against William Miller in which he was convicted of selling intoxicating liquor, Judge Curtin reversed the finding of Mayor Renick on the ground that the judgment was against the weight of evidence. Barton Walters represented Mr. Miller.

Case Settled.

On May 30, of this year Mrs. Clara Beatty Brown and daughter, Doris Louise Brown, riding in a buggy drawn by a horse was killed at a grade crossing on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad at Grove City. The railroad company has effected a settlement in the probate court by paying the funeral expenses, loss of horse and buggy and court costs a total of $800.

FIND CHILDREN GROW FASTER IN THE FALL

Maximum Gain Between August and September.

New York.—Children between the ages of four and thirteen, both girls and boys, grow faster and better during August and the three following months than at any other period of the year, according to results of careful study into the question of child nutrition by the New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor.

Boys make 55.3 per cent and girls 50.8 per cent of the total yearly growth between August 1 and December 1. The period of maximum gain is in the late summer and early fall, and the period of minimum advancement falls in the late spring and early summer.

While the same tendency holds for both boys and girls, it is most marked among the girls.

The following table gives the average gain in pounds by months and the percentage of the annual gain made in each of the months of the year:

Months	Boys Av. Pct. of gain annual gain in lbs. gain in lbs.	Girls Av. Pct. of gain annual gain in lbs. gain in lbs.
January	.67	.53
February	.51	.43
March	.43	.36
April	.43	.34
May	.25	.37
June	.06	.08
July	.26	.35
August	.89	.79
September	1.01	1.06
October	1.00	1.00
November	.84	.99
December	.51	.76
Total year	6.74	6.41
Aver. monthly	.56	.53

In May the girls showed an average loss of .05 pound. This is equivalent to 0.8 per cent of the total gain.

The report says:

"The rate of growth in both height and weight over a given period of time is quite as important, in judging a child's state of development as his attained stature and weight at any given period. Physicians, teachers, school nurses and nutrition workers must rely on the gains made during short periods of from three to six months to determine whether the child is doing well, for obviously all healthy children must be expected to gain steadily in both height and weight."

Winning Glider Built of Scrapped Wire and Tin

Koenigsberg, Germany.—Old broomsticks, baling wire and scraps of tin salvaged from milk and bully beef cans were chiefly used in constructing the glider in which Ferdinand Schulz in an experimental flight remained in the air eight hours forty-two minutes and eight seconds and thereby established a world's record for heavier than air machines without motors.

The plane was constructed by Schulz during odd moments when he was not busy teaching a school class here in east Prussia, which is his home. The flight took place at Rossitten.

Schulz appeared last year with a glider made of hop poles and scrap tin, but his machine was rejected by the technical committee and he was not allowed to compete in the meet on the theory that it was unsafe.

Schulz says he could have remained in the air much longer had he made proper preparations for an extended flight. He had neglected to take along gloves, and was in his shirt sleeves; toward afternoon he felt the cold keenly. Finally, he says, he became so hungry that he decided to land and as he did not have a watch with him, he was most surprised when informed he had established a record.

American Cities' Debts Grow Billion a Year

New York.—The bonded indebtedness of municipalities of the United States continues to increase, and new securities are being issued at the rate of about a billion dollars annually, according to a commentary upon the debt of more than two hundred cities by C. E. Rightor, chief accountant, Detroit bureau of government research. A tabulation gives the classified debt of the various cities, the net bonded debt and the per capita debt on January 1, 1924.

The average per capita debt of all cities of 2,500 or more is $70.80, but the per capita debt ranges from $258.62 for Norfolk to $10.96 for Quincy, Ill., omitting Washington, D. C., which has only a few old bond issues outstanding. The per capita indebtedness in general is below that of thirteen principal Canadian cities, in which it ranges from $363.05 in Edmonton, Alberta, to $112.02 in Hamilton, Ontario.

Efficiency in Use of Fuel Shows Increase

Washington.—Efficiency in use of fuel by public utility power plants has increased 33 1-3 per cent in the last four years, according to a statement issued by the Department of Interior, which shows that a ton of coal in 1919 produced 625 kilowatt hours of electricity, compared with 835 hours in 1923. The total amount of electricity generated increased in this period from 39,000,000,000 kilowatt hours to 55.7 billion kilowatt hours.

To Climb Canadian Peaks

Edmonton, Alberta.—An attempt to scale Mount Bobson will be made this summer by the Alpine club of Canada. Arrangements also are being made for an expedition to scale Mount Logan, Canada's highest peak, in 1925.

OUTLINING PLANS FOR CAMPAIGN

Rival Managers of Three-Cornered Contest Make Ready.

SPEAKING DRIVES A FEATURE

Republican, Democratic and Independent Managers Plan to Cover the Entire Country—LaFollette Followers Would Increase Insurgent Strength in Congress—Oratory on Tap After Labor Day.

Washington, July 23.—Rival managers in the triangular contest for the presidency are perfecting plans for the coming campaign.

Speaking drives will start after Labor day, it was announced. Republican campaign plans are undergoing a complete revision at the hands of President Coolidge and Chairman William H. Butler of the Republican national committee. Democratic managers in conference with Clem L. Shaver, prospective chairman of the Democratic national committee, are rapidly working out the details of the intensive speaking tours to be made by John W. Davis, and the independent campaign, headed by Senator La Follette, has begun to take form, including the selection of the committee of 11, which will determine the conduct of the fight.

The unexpected strength which the independent move seems to be gathering is causing the rival managers to make many shifts in their programs. One change calls for expanding the speaking program for President Coolidge. It had been planned to have him make not more than six speeches outside of Washington. Now it seems certain that he will accept invitations to speak in at least a dozen cities in key positions over the country, as far as the northwest, and perhaps one on the Pacific coast.

The Democrats intend to stage a desperate fight throughout the east, particularly in New York, with its 45 electoral votes. They are counting on Governor Al Smith being prevailed upon to reconsider his decision not to run for re-election as governor of New York. Neither is the east being overlooked by the independents. Senator Wheeler, La Follette's running mate, will open his nationwide speaking trip in New York, and La Follette is expected to make several speeches in the east.

Chairman Butler of the Republican national committee issued this statement: "Our friendly enemies desire to make this, as some of them have said, a campaign based on the personality of the candidates. We will be ready. If they desire to base the election on pledges or party records we will not be disturbed."

Butler also announced that a branch office of the party's national headquarters would probably be opened in the west to supplement the national offices to be maintained in Chicago, the eastern headquarters in New York and the Washington office.

Those in charge of Senator La Follette's campaign for president plan to let voters know, well in advance of election day, which congressional candidates they favor. They are to make determined efforts to increase the strength of the insurgent blocs in the house and senate. Senators and representatives who have been in accord with La Follette policies and are up for re-election will be given endorsement, while in some states and districts encouragement will be given "liberal" candidates in the field against members of the senate and house whom the followers of the Wisconsin senator classify as "reactionary."

The acceptance speech of John W. Davis, Democratic nominee, will be brief, it is said. His idea now is to cover the field generally, with emphasis on the more important issues of the day, such as honesty in government, foreign affairs, taxes and tariff and farm relief. The occasion requires the discussion of so many subjects that Mr. Davis can not make his speech as brief as he would like.

Brigadier General Butler Ordered Back to Marine Corps.

Philadelphia, July 23.—Brigadier General Smedley D. Butler, Philadelphia's public safety director, announced that he had been ordered to report for service with the marines at San Diego, Cal., Jan. 11. The order came from Major General LeJeune, commander of the marine corps, Butler said. He added that he would go to Washington before Aug. 1 to see General LeJeune and take up with him all arrangements for his reentrance into the service.

TARRIED BY MASKED MEN

Woman Declares She Was Seized by Hooded Band.

St. Clairsville, O., July 23.—Authorities are investigating the story told by Mrs. Esther Sells, 23, who reported that while riding in the country near Morristown she was seized by 12 masked men, bundled into the woods at the roadside and coated with tar. "I was driving through the country with a couple of friends, a girl and a young man," Mrs. Sells said, "when a group of men, all wearing pillow-case hoods, stopped us and dragged me out of the car." Authorities said Mrs. Sells could offer no motive for the act and that apparently she was not injured. After the alleged tar party the men scattered. Mrs. Sells said, and she went back to the auto, where her friends were waiting for her.

CROWE OPENS FOR THE STATE

ARRAY OF WITNESSES CALLED

Big Legal Battle Begins to Determine the Mental Responsibility of the Slayer of Young Franks—State Demands Death Penalty, While Defense Hopes for Mitigation of Youths' Punishment.

Chicago, July 23.—The hearing to determine the mental responsibility of Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, confessed slayers of 14-year-old Robert Franks, opened before Judge Caverly today, with an array of witnesses called by both sides.

It is expected that more than three weeks will be consumed for the hearing. State's Attorney Crowe, in his opening statement today, said he intends to present every bit of evidence collected by the state just as if a jury was hearing the case. The prosecution, which demands the gallows for the two university students, who said they killed for experiment, plans to examine 100 witnesses. The defense, hoping for a life sentence, expects to submit testimony of alienists regarding the mental responsibility of the youths. Only evidence tending to mitigate their punishment can be submitted to the court.

State's Attorney Crowe announced he would summon the bereaved parents, and almost at the same moment Attorney Benjamin Bachrach of defense counsel said he would call the two youths and their parents.

The court has four alternates—a sentence of death, a sentence of life imprisonment, a sentence of 14 years' imprisonment or a sentence of any number of years over 14. The hearing will be exactly like a trial, except that since the boys have already admitted their guilt, there will be no jury and the arguments of the state and defense will be presented to the court only for the purpose of affecting the degree of the sentence.

Clarence Darrow, chief counsel for the defense, explained why he entered the plea of guilty. "It was the only logical thing for us to do," the famous defense attorney said. "Those boys are not fit to mingle in society. Their parents are agreed that their sons should be confined. The defense never did and does not now, of course, have any desire to set them free."

State's Attorney Crowe opened the state's case with an explanation of what he will seek to establish. It was a lengthy statement. He will summon one after another of his witnesses to relate from the witness stand all the events of the kidnapping and killing of Robert Franks.

Drs. James Whitney Hall and William J. Hickson of Chicago, Dr. William A. White of Washington, Dr. Karl Bowman of Boston and Dr. Ralph Hamill are among the mental experts who will take the stand for the defense.

Jacob Franks, father of the slain boy, expressed the hope that the plea of guilty did not mean the slayers would escape actual criminal prosecution. He visited the state's attorney's office after he heard first reports of the action of the defense. "It means something, perhaps, when they admit their guilt," he said. "Now, if ever there was a case on earth demanding the death penalty, it is this one. I have been of the opinion from the start that these boys should be put to death. This talk of insanity is all nonsense."

LYNCHING AVERTED

Two Negroes Suspected of Slaying Young Woman.

Chicago, July 23.—Suspected of slaying Miss Daisy Wilson, 18, in an attempted holdup of her father's store at Villa Ridge, Ill., two negroes were taken to the county jail at Mounds for safekeeping. They opened fire on Wilson and a bullet killed the daughter. A mob of several hundred men, apparently intent on a lynching, was quelled when H. F. Moreland, a Ku Klux Klan organizer, spoke and prayed in front of the city hall. Several in the crowd were deputized by Sheriff I. J. Hudson to guard the prisoners. At first the slain girl's father, J. H. Wilson, who, himself was severely beaten, was not certain that the negroes were the assailants. He became more positive in his identification, however, when a neighbor said they were the same negroes he had spotted in the vicinity.

Bootlegger Testifies.

Canton, O., July 23.—Harry Bouklias, self-styled bootlegger, testified before a jury here that he had been a partner of E. E. Curtis, former safety director, on trial on charges of bribery, in the moonshine business, and that Curtis had shared in profits of from $15,000 to $20,000. Bouklias said that he had acted as collector of the money and that he had also collected money from saloonkeepers.

Carload of Whisky Seized.

Cleveland, July 23.—Federal dry agents confiscated a carload of bonded whisky valued at $100,000 when they raided a freight car on the New York Central railroad tracks. The shipment, billed as lumber, was consigned to an elevator company from Charleston, S. C., federal agents said. The whisky was covered with sacks and straw. Lumber was piled on top of it.

ORDER HITS STEEL CORPORATION

Pittsburgh Plus System Must Be Abandoned.

COMMISSION ISSUES DECREE

Pittsburgh Plus Plan Held to Be an Unfair Method of Competition and a Violation of the Federal Trade Commission Act—Order Expected to Decentralize the Steel Industry. Essence of the Ruling.

Washington, July 23.—An order that may decentralize the steel industry was issued by the federal trade commission.

The United States Steel corporation was directed by the commission to abandon the Pittsburgh plus system of determining the price of steel.

The Pittsburgh plus plan was held by the commission to be an unfair method of competition. The practice was found to be a violation of the federal trade commission act and further to constitute a means of price discrimination in violation of the Clayton act. The commission charged that the system is contrary to the public interest and not based on the law of supply and demand, is a price-fixing system, and that it is made possible by the alleged domination of the steel industry by the steel corporation. It also was held that the Pittsburgh plus system lessens and eliminates competition, retards business in all steel centers except Pittsburgh, and adds greatly to the cost of steel products.

The Pittsburgh plus system is the method by which the United States Steel corporation and its subsidiaries quote prices on rolled steel products manufactured by and shipped from their plants outside Pittsburgh at a Pittsburgh base price plus an amount equivalent to what the freight charge would be from that city. The commission, in its order, forbade the steel corporation or its subsidiaries from quoting any steel price without listing separately the price of the steel and the transportation charge.

The commission believes that the effect of its order will be the building up of all steel producing and consuming sections outside of Pittsburgh; the return to the western and southern steel users of natural advantage of their location; decentralization of the steel industry and industries using steel products, and will enforce price competition among the steel producers.

FEDERALS BOMBARD SAO PAULO CITY

Thousands of Civilians Reported Killed or Injured.

Washington, July 23.—The heaviest fighting of the Sao Paulo revolution took place on Sunday, according to advices received by the state department from Brazil. Current reports at Sao Paulo state that the killed and injured total 3,000 civilians, but no Americans are included in these casualties, the advices continued.

Dispatches from Buenos Ayres say the federal forces started a heavy bombardment of rebel positions in Sao Paulo City Sunday. The federal troops, reinforced until they number more than 25,000, are encircling Sao Paulo City and have brought up big batteries of heavy artillery. Thousands of refugees have fled from Sao Paulo City into the interior, and toward Santos, which is calm.

All railroads leading into Sao Paulo City have been cut and the famous coffee capital now is beleaguered on practically all sides. Big American packing plants in Sao Paulo, including the $20,000,000 Armour plant built during the world war, are reported undamaged.

The revolutionary regime in Sao Paulo, Brazil, has issued a manifesto declaring fighting must continue until President Bernardes agrees to resign and full suffrage is re-established.

Trials of the government's suit against the Pan-American oil interests for cancellation of naval oil reserve leases in the Elki Hill district will start Oct. 20 at Los Angeles.

FOUR LOST LIVES

Survivors of Collision at Sea Are Landed Safely.

Newport, R. I., July 23.—Four lives were lost when the Eastern Steamship company's liner Boston was rammed by an oil tanker near the entrance to Block Island sound. Five hundred passengers were rescued in small boats and brought into this port on the steamer Priscilla.

The victims were: Mrs. Oscar Green, Brooklyn; Charles O. Copeland, Brookline, Mass.; John P. Schlemm, New York, and Robert P. Schlemm, Boston, brothers.

The oil tanker Swift Arrow, out of Fall River, bound for San Francisco, which crashed into the Boston in a dense fog, was able to make port under her own power.

The Boston, which left Boston for New York, was nosing her way cautiously southwestward, a short distance off Point Judith, R. I., in a dense blanket of fog when the accident occurred. The oiler loomed suddenly out of the darkness, according to first reports and struck the Boston amidships, tearing a hole in her side.

Despite the confusion that followed immediately upon the crash, transfer of passengers to the tanker, which was not badly damaged, began.

Burke Attacks "Bosses."

Urbana, O., July 23.—State Senator J. F. Burke, candidate for Republican nomination for governor, attacked Republican "bosses" in his speech here. He charged them with attempting to control the Republican party in Ohio and the state government for their own ends. Declaring his independence of the "bosses" and pledging himself to keep the "bosses' spoils system" out of the state government if he is elected, Burke asserted he was under obligations to none of them.

COURTS AN INQUIRY

Harper Says He Is Ready to Assist the State Auditor.

Columbus, July 23.—Welfare Director Harper promised co-operation in the event that State Auditor J. T. Tracy decides to make an investigation of the purchase by the department of public welfare of the plant of the Tri-County Brick company at Roseville, Muskingum county.

In sending the requisition for a vouchers for $35,000 in full payment for the plant to the state auditor, Director Harper also sent a letter in which he stated that he had read of the probable intentions of the state auditor to hold up the voucher until an investigation had been made as to whether the state had been "stung," as charged by the Republican state committee press department. "Such an investigation upon your part, or made by those you deem qualified to pass upon the property, meets with my approval, and I think that in view of the charges made by the Republican state committee there should be no delay in the same, should you so decide."

FIRST FLOATING FAIR SENT OUT BY GERMANY

Pilgrimage to Ports of Europe, Asia and Africa.

Hamburg, Germany.—The first German floating fair will leave Hamburg July 30 on a voyage which will occupy ten months and take the fairship, "Industria I," as far east as Yokohama.

The ship is to give testimony to postwar German enterprise, and is to carry the "Made in Germany" label to distant points of Europe, and to Asia and Africa. If the experiment proves successful a second ship is to be outfitted for a trip to North and South America.

There will be room for 750 exhibitors on this floating fair ground, and in addition to a printing shop, banking facilities, stenographic rooms, post and telegraph, film and magic lantern service and a news bureau. The fair service is to show German places of interest, especially industrial towns and industrial processes.

It is planned that the floating fair shall stop from three to eight days in every harbor visited. The route is as follows: Helsingfors, Stockholm, Copenhagen, Southampton, Lisbon, Malaga, Barcelona, Palermo, Naples, Piraeus, Constantinople, Smyrna, Jaffa, Alexandria, Port Said, Aden, Karachi, Bombay, Colombo, Madras, Calcutta, Rangoon, Penang, Delhi, Singapore, Batavia, Soerabaya, Macassar, Bangkok, Manila, Canton, Shanghai, Tsingtau, Kobe, Vladivostok, Osaka and Yokohama.

Hungry Jellyfish Drive

Herring From North Sea

Bremerhaven.—European ichthyologists have become greatly exercised by the diminished numbers of haddock and herring in the North sea, from which various other countries obtain their principal fish supplies.

Several conferences have been held by those interested in the fish industry to consider what steps may be taken to remedy the situation. The herring began to disappear three years ago, and the haddock some months later.

Fish experts attribute the diminished numbers to incredibly large schools of jellyfish and various forms of sea nettle which were swept in from the Atlantic ocean in 1920, when several changes were reported in the different Atlantic currents.

The jellyfish came in a flood of warm water and made themselves at home at once, consuming the food of the herring in such great amounts that the herring were unable to subsist. When they began to disappear the haddock, too, began gradually to diminish, as it is upon the eggs of the herring that the haddock exists during a great part of the year.

German Scientists Find

Hoof-and-Mouth Germ

Berlin, Germany.—Bacteriologists throughout Europe have been interested in the recent announcement here of the discovery of a bacillus capable of reproducing the hoof-and-mouth disease in animals. Specialists have come to Berlin to investigate further, while there have been many letters and cablegrams from the United States and England, where there have been epidemics this spring. News of the discovery came from Prof. Paul Frosch of the Royal Veterinary college, who has been working on the problem several years in conjunction with Professor Dahmer.

The new bacillus has not yet been subjected to sufficient confirmatory tests to make it possible to say positively that it is the final solution of the difficulty, but medical journals in Germany and England have written enthusiastic articles about it, and various authorities have ventured to predict that this enthusiasm has not been misplaced.

According to writers on veterinary subjects in these periodicals, the hoof-and-mouth disease is supposed to have been a European malady for more than 2,000 years, though it was not until the Seventeenth and Eighteenth centuries that positive proof of its presence was found.

Alaska's Brown Bears

Lure Hosts of Hunters

The Alaska peninsula is, without doubt, the best big bear country in the world today, although in sections where a hunter, five years ago, would get from twenty to fifty pelts in a season, these animals are extinct. In secluded areas on the Bering sea side the brown grizzlies are found in great numbers. Trappers arriving here tell of having sighted twenty to forty bears in a single day's march.

The range and distribution of the Alaskan grizzly is for the most part through the coastal country from icy straits, near here, along Prince William sound, Kodiak and other islands, the entire Alaskan peninsula and along Bristol bay and Bering sea. In fact, the big brown bears are found where salmon abound.

The results of the de luxe bear chase are the finest pelts for rugs, robes or coats. Attractive trophies of mounted heads and claws are brought home to adorn offices and smoking dens. The short season when the hides are well furred assures the crop for many generations, provided, of course, that salmon and other food for the animals continues abundant.

ALONG LIFE'S TRAIL

By THOMAS A. CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois
(©, 1924, Western Newspaper Union)

THE DRY GOODS CLERK

EACH of us cherishes a secret ambition. I have no doubt. Our hired man, who never succeeded in writing a complete sentence, and who would not have recognized a joke if he had met one face to face, confessed to me once that he'd "like to run one of them funny coles in a daily newspaper," and Fenton, my neighbor who weighs 300 pounds and has never been able to learn how to navigate a Ford, admitted that he'd like best of all to be an aviator.

As for myself, perfect bliss has always seemed to me incarnate in the young fellow who sold things in a dry goods and gents' furnishing store. If I could ever have helped out with the Christmas trade at Gulick's who ran such an emporium in our village, I should have been content, and asked for nothing in my Christmas stocking. But such joy has always been denied me.

Herb Weston had charge of the "gents' furnishings" in the store, and he was to me the last word in sartorial perfection, and the object of my secret envy. He was plump and impressive of physique, and his clothes were without a wrinkle. He was considered the social dictator of the village. He affected spats and a cut-away coat buttoned over a gloriously brocaded vest. His socks were radiant; but the crowning feature of his attire was a large pearl pin stuck at a rakish angle through his cravat. It seemed to my boyish eyes priceless and unattainable. I have since, in Rome, bought a handful of similar jewels for three lire.

Young girls adored Herb; young men envied him. He had such self-possession, such assurance, such perfection of appearance and such opulence. His salary, I was told, was $40 a month! It seemed incredible.

I was too much of a yokel for him to give me a thought. I came from the farm and my clothes were common and ill-fitting. He laughed at me one day as he saw me mounting Moses, our old gray horse, who was covered with mud from rolling in the street while I had been making some purchases in the store.

His cynical smile chilled me. That was the end of my ambition. I realized with a sad heart that it was far too high for my attainment and future events have proved that I was right. I have had to be contented with a humbler lot.

Charming White Flannel Suit for Summer Wear

Parasols Are Much in Summer Fashion Picture

There has been a change of sentiment regarding the charm of a tanned complexion, and parasols are having a sweeping vogue, observes a fashion authority in the New York Times. All of the new modes in gowns, the latest patterns, colors, even materials, are repeated in the latest parasols received from Paris. There are taffeta silks, in plain colors, plaids, checks and stripes. In some models a plaid and plain silk are used in alternate bands around the parasol. There are crepes in plain colors and printed in all the new patterns; in floral designs, basket, conventional.

The covering of one new parasol is an especially drawn design, cubist in character, in black, white and rose, with a tracery of gold. The picturesque sunshades shown earlier for the Palm Beach season are in evidence in variations. A white silk shade on sticks of white bamboo tipped with ivory has a sea gull in natural gray, white and black painted across the top.

Pongee parasols are new and summery. Most are shown in the natural shade, many with a border of colored velvet ribbon two or three inches wide. In these are also pretty shades of green, orange and red, each with a border of contrasting color, oftenest black.

To carry with the light summer dresses are charming parasols of ribbon. A Parisian novelty is made of wide rainbow ribbon in slightly gathered ruffles. Another is covered with frills of narrow ribbon and one other with small frills of valenciennes lace. Flowered chiffons in the sweetest patterns and colors cover some of the white silk parasols. Frame and stick are of white enamel or light wood and colored enamel. Quartz, agate, jade, amber, coral, onyx or gold delicately chased or finely carved wood are used in the handles.

Straight-Line Coat Is Decree of Today's Mode

The coat may be cloth or silk. It may be full length or it may stop several inches short of the skirt hem, but it must be straight of line, asserts a fashion writer.

And with only these few qualifications to fill, there are left to the clever designer numberless original treatments which go to make the wrap a thing of individual style.

She may introduce clever flounce effects or she may achieve a coat as slim and straight as a die. Her trimming mediums, though sparingly applied, may be chosen from a remarkably wide range.

There are deep, wrappy collars; there are even fur collars for summer coats. Then there is the scarf finish. The scarf may be of material matching the coat and attached to it. Or it may decide to offer a contrasting note and bring in some soft color combination or a gayly printed motif.

The lining itself is always decorative, whether it offers a plain color contrast or sprinkles some vivid pattern over a plain colored background.

Women Denounced Coffee

In "the women's petition against coffee," 1674, they complained that "it made men as unfruitful as the deserts whence that unhappy berry is said to be brought!" That the "offspring of their mighty ancestors would dwindle into a succession of apes and pigmies" and that on a domestic message a husband would "stop by the way to drink a couple of cups of coffee."

Strange Occupation

A man died in England the other day who for nearly fifty years had served as a "smeller" in a brewery. For a half-century this man gave his life to sniffing at empty beer barrels, thousands of them every week, and rejecting the "stinkers." What a critic he would have made if his fastidious taste had had ampler scope!

First U. S. Patent

The first United States patent was granted to a descendant of a Waterbury (Conn.) miller. The second was granted to a resident of Waterbury, and the number of patents now issued to people of that city is about double that which might be expected from the population.

HERRICK REFRIGERATORS

The Big Difference In Refrigerators

The main object of any refrigerator, of course, is the preservation of foods. The refrigerator that will keep foods in perfect condition longest is naturally the refrigerator you want—provided it doesn't increase your ice bills.

The Herrick answers those requirements with facts—not claims. And it does even more. It actually decreases your ice bills while giving you more effective food preservation.

And why? Simply because the Herrick is far more than an ice box—far more than a cold storage place. It is built on the scientifically demonstrated principle that more than merely cold air is necessary to keep foods in good condition for any great length of time.

Perhaps the biggest essentials to scientifically correct refrigeration are—

- No. 1. Circulation of cold dry air.
- No. 2. Effective insulation.
- No. 3. Air-tight construction.

That the Herrick has these necessary essentials is a demonstrated fact.

Many proofs of the truth are visible even to the least informed purchaser. Others are hidden within the walls of the refrigerator, but nevertheless there, performing their functions so important to good health and economy.

If you have a hammer the head of which keeps flying off, sandpaper the handle, replace the head, drive in wedges in the usual "H" form, and then boil the hammer slowly in linseed oil for about three hours. FIND UNKNOWN RIVER in Far North.
IN NORTHERN ALASKAInteresting Letter Tells Life

Washington, D. C.—The story of an explorer's life in the northern Alaskan wilderness and the discovery of uncharted streams is contained in a letter brought back to civilization by an Eskimo from the geological survey party headed by Dr. Philip S. Smith and made public by the Interior department. The expedition is exploring naval petroleum reserve No. 4.

In exploring the Colville river, the letter, written March 30, states that Doctor Smith found a river about 200 yards wide, which flows westward and then turns northward. The party plans to continue the river explorations, but they must reach the coast in time to catch the last ship out of the Arctic ocean before the September freeze.

Find Grove of Willows.

The party has established a base camp at the head of the Unakserak river about ten miles from the divide between the Unakserak and Colville rivers, at latitude 67:45:30, at an altitude of 2,200 feet. On this divide the party has discovered groves of willow trees as large as a man's wrist, which they are using for fuel.

The letter explained that the supporting party of seven men and 120 dogs turned back on March 16, and the main expedition was proceeding with three sleds and thirty-three dogs. The sleds soon will be abandoned, and the journey continued in canoes on the Colville river.

The letter, which was written by Dr. J. B. Mertie, Jr., gives the following description:

"During the summer, I have been engaged chiefly in making astronomical observations with the transit. I have seven good observations on latitude and azimuth, which check one another very well.

Able to Find the Time.

"Having my azimuth, I also have local time from transits of the sun. And what with watches, and their known ratings, we are in a position to make a fair computation of longitude. I am, also, able to rate our watches from successive transits of the sun, day after day at this camp.

"Such diversion keeps me very busy, and the days pass very quickly. Once in a while, say once a day, when it gets too cold sitting in the tent, I warm up by cutting wood for a half hour or an hour. All of us are well. None of us have been seriously frost-bitten yet, and I think the most severe weather of the winter is past now. So, all in all, everything is going fine, and the success of the expedition seems assured. Just tell that to the doubters."

Asks Fifteen Years' Wages
From Stepfather's Estate

Columbus, Ohio.—Milking cows, cleaning the barn and tilling the field for 15 years without compensation. That is what Margaret Hallen charges in a petition filed in common pleas court, asking that she be made a beneficiary in the estate of her stepfather, William Welsh.

Miss Hallen says when she was twelve years old her mother married Welsh. He promised, she alleges, to give her a third interest in his estate if she would do chores on the farm. At his death, she says, her mother, as executrix, sought to carry out the agreement, but Welsh's son, Henry S., protested. The estate is valued at $9,540.

Savants to Visit Lapps

Gothenburg.—The Lapps, mysterious nomads of the North, are again to be studied by scientists. Dr. G. Clyde-Fisher, of the Museum of Natural History, New York, is now here on his way to Swedish Lapland to observe the life, customs and daily life of these people.

Doubting Banks, Keep
$400,000,000 in Socks

Washington.—In the collective ginger jars and stockings of the United States there is a total of more than $400,000,000 jealously hoarded away, according to estimates by Joseph S. McCoy, United States treasury actuary, for the current issue of the American Bankers' Association Journal.

Eight thousand Americans may safely be put in the miser class, McCoy believes. They just like to see their money and gloat over it and call it pet names, and among them they are keeping $44,000,000 out of circulation.

Then there are the children's banks. Probably 2,500,000 kids have such banks, and there is perhaps an average of 60 cents in each, making a total of $1,500,000 thus hoarded away. McCoy doesn't go so far as to charge the kids with wanting to let their money stay in the pin-proof receptacles.

About half of the entire hoarded wealth of the United States is in the cupboards and under the mattresses of foreign-born residents, who aren't yet used to banks. And farmers are hoarding a total of $125,000,000, McCoy says.

BANQUET AT
LAURELVILLEChamber of Commerce Visited the Village Tuesday Evening.

Tecumseh Floyd and Major Floyd Were
Speakers—Karl Hermann and Miss
Mary Pickens Had Charge of Music—
W. F. Cellar, Master of Ceremonies.

The chamber of commerce visited Laurelville Tuesday evening accompanied by their ladies, and were welcomed by Charles White and W. F. DeHaven, a committee representing the business men of the metropolis of Saltcreek Valley.

A banquet was given at the community house and a very enjoyable time was had. Wilson F. Cellar was master of ceremonies. Karl Hermann and Miss Mary Pickens had charge of the music and Samuel Grant and Elmer Wolf were the entertainment committee. A bountiful and appetizing meal was spread before the crowd to which all did ample justice. Tecumseh Floyd, gave the address of welcome and told the visitors that he was glad they came down to the Gem City of the hills. He said that if the chamber of commerce did nothing else, they certainly did one good thing when their influence was given to having the Circleville-Laurelville pike taken over by the state and county and having it improved.

The speaker's son, Major Oliver Floyd, who has been in the regular army for the past fifteen years and who is now home on a furlough, was the next speaker. Major Floyd told his audience that in this last war this country was totally unprepared for contingencies. The spending of fifteen billions of dollars was one of the most wasteful expenditures of money made by a nation in modern times.

He touched on the military training of the green soldier and the work it required to make a soldier out of the raw material.

MEMBERSHIP HONORS

Captured by Ohio Building and Loan Associations.

Cleveland, July 23.—Total membership of Ohio building and loan associations is now 1,375,968 and total assets are $648,160,960.

This was revealed in the annual report of H. F. Cellarius of Cincinnati, national secretary of the United States League of Local Building and Loan associations, in session here.

Pennsylvania made the largest increase in assets during the last fiscal year, with a total increase of $121,000,000. Ohio was second with an increase of $83,812,433. The greatest increase in membership during the past year was shown by Ohio, with 206,140 new members.

Building and loan companies in the United States advanced more than $1,260,000,000 last year on mortgage security towards the building of homes throughout the country. "Assuming that the average loan made was about $3,500," Mr. Cellarius said, "our associations financed approximately 360,000 homes."

Said to Have Slain Father.
Hudson, Wis., July 23.—In an alleged confession Walter Kruger is said by authorities to have admitted killing his father with an iron bar, because "he was always swearing around the house." The body was found buried in an abandoned hog pen.

Firpo to Meet Wills.
New York, July 23.—Luis Angel Firpo, Argentine heavyweight boxer, signed a contract for his bout with Harry Wills. The contract provides that the fight shall not be held before Aug. 30 and that Firpo must meet no other fighter until he boxes Wills. Firpo said he was considering White Sulphur Springs at Saratoga, and Summit, N. J., as sites for his training camps.

Indorse La Follette.
New York, July 23.—Representatives of 300,000 trade unionists and Socialists, meeting here, endorsed the presidential ticket of Senator La Follette, with his running mate, Senator Wheeler. The delegates, numbering 450, announced they expected to raise $500,000 for the La Follette campaign.

Desert and Jungle
In the driest and hottest region in the United States—southwestern Arizona—there is a combined desert and jungle, according to the report of a survey of the Gila river region. The region is called an "arboreal" desert by Clyde P. Ross, interior department engineer. Underground water enables an abundant flora to survive under the burning desert sunshine.

High Above Sea Level
Measurements made of the heights of clouds at Melbourne show the highest cirrus clouds to be from 20,000 to 42,000 feet above sea level.

CHURCH PICNIC

Good Fishing and Swimming—Supper
Served at Six O'clock.

The Presbyterian picnic will be held tomorrow, Thursday afternoon, at the Joseph Shortridge farm northwest of town. Machines will leave the church at one o'clock. The committee in charge has arranged for transportation for all as well as for safety in the water. Plenty of blue grass, shade, water and open air will furnish the setting necessary for all that goes with a picnic. Supper will be served at six o'clock in order to give the men who must work in the afternoon a chance to be on hand for the big end of the day. Cars will be at the church for late comers at 5:45. We are told that the fishing as well as the swimming is good. All members and friends of the church are invited to bring baskets and join in the good time.

John Hillary, better known as "Cyclone" Swain, was in the city Tuesday seeing the newspapers on writing baseball articles. If there is any one that knows more about the diamond that "Cyclone" Swain he will have to go some. When his six feet of avoirdupois stood in the pitcher's box for the Washington D. Mr. Swain is still a very active man and is up on all baseball dope.

BIG DABBY

Big Dabby Athletics lost one of the best played games of the season to the Miller Grocers Sunday 6 to 4. The game was hard fought and exciting all the way thru; the fourth inning being the only scoreless one. Downs pitched a splendid game for Darbys after being on the sick list for two days. He struck out nine. Rohrer was the leading hitter getting three safeties in three times up. Tharp got a double and homer while Neff hit a double and single. Big Darbys will play the fast National Billiards next Sunday at Darbyville.

In a case of drowning, asphyxiation or electric shock one of the best ways to establish artificial respiration is the prone-pressure method, in which the rescuer lays the victim face down, straddles his thighs and with fingers spread over his lowest ribs presses them in unison with his own breathing.—Youth's Companion.

AMUSEMENTS

A domestic melodrama of the finest a story of human strength and weakness is the Paramount picture, "His Children's Children," which opened at the Met theater last evening. The production, with Bebe Daniels, Dorothy Mackaill, James Rennie and George Fawcett in featured roles, is an adaptation by Monte M. Katterjohn of a new novel by Arthur Train and it was excellently produced by Sam Wood.

The story is one of a multi-millionaire railroad magnate who on his fifty fifth birthday anniversary comes to the decision, that he is going to "lay off." His three daughters, Diana, Sheila and Claudia, have become almost strangers in his household. Always on the go, Diana and Sheila, for Claudia has been unfortunate in her marriage with a scapegrace Englishman, find little, if any time to devote to household duties. They are ultra-modern young women with but one aim in life, enjoyment, found thru the artificial channels of dope, Greenwich Village and the like. Peter B. Kayne, the old grandfather, is unable to restrain them.

Financial reverses revolutionize the Kayne household and it is then that the girls 'come to.' Diana in particular, becomes quite domesticated, happy in the love of Lloyd Maitland, played by James Rennie. Bebe Daniels portrays the role of Diana while Dorothy Mackaill is cast as the wayward Sheila. George Fawcett has the excellent character part of old Peter B. himself. Among the more prominent players in the supporting cast are Hale Hamilton, Mary Eaton, Mahlon Hamilton, Warner Oland, Lawrence D'Orsay and John Davidson. "His Children's Children" is an extremely powerful production and one that is sure to strike home anywhere. It is a delightful story of everyone's home and family and you'll enjoy it immensely.

Ex-Governor Harry L. Davis, of Cleveland, and a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor in the August primaries will be at the New American hotel tomorrow morning at 9:30 o'clock where he will be pleased to meet all our people.

The primary is now less than three weeks away and all voters should make every effort to become acquainted with the candidates and inform themselves as to their principles and policies.

Mr. Davis was governor of Ohio from 1921 to 1923 and now seeks the opportunity to be his party's candidate for a second term. He is making his campaign on the achievements of his administration and everyone should make an effort to meet him when he visits Circleville.

The public is cordially invited to meet Governor Davis at the New American hotel tomorrow morning at 9:30 o'clock.

YOUNG MINDS

Children Should be Given Vigorous Diet in Their Reading.

Give the children something to read. Their brains need something to feed on even as much as their bodies do.

That message has been sent to Ohio county agents in the July issue of Fax, a special publication sent to county agents from the Ohio State university. Along with the message is a list of children's magazines compiled by Professor and Mrs. C. E. Lively of the College of Agriculture. "It is a well-established fact that the country is not well supplied with good magazine literature especially adapted to children," they write. "The farmer usually takes plenty of newspapers and is also well supplied with farm papers. There are also papers for the farm woman, tho not nearly so many. But aside from the comic sheet of the newspaper and a few special columns in the farm paper, the children are not well supplied."

"Nor is this material well adapted to child life. Children need an abundance of good reading well illustrated, especially between the ages of learning to read and the middle teens. Children's magazines offer one of the best methods of meeting that need."

For smaller children the magazines recommended contain stories, legends, fables, rhymes and jingles, games and pastimes, departments of handwork, music and verse, construction work and puzzles. All are well illustrated and well printed. The magazines for older children carry more fiction stories of adventure and travel, puzzles, collections, athletics, camping, plays and stunts, nature and science, and current events.

Swine Tuberculosis Blamed on Poultry

Disposal of Old Fowls Will Eliminate Danger.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In some localities poultry is largely responsible for tuberculosis infection among swine, according to the findings of the United States Department of Agriculture. Although scientific and laboratory studies of the different types of tuberculosis have thus far not yielded definite information as to the degree in which the various types of tubercle bacilli affect animals of different species, field reports show clearly that swine are susceptible to infection from both poultry and bovine sources. The infection in a given locality may be from either one or the other source, or from both.

Tuberculosis in fowls occurs chiefly among the older birds, especially those more than two years old. The most conspicuous symptom is "going light," meaning as the name indicates, a rapid loss of weight, especially the emaciation of the breast muscles. Other symptoms are lameness and ruffled plumage. On post-mortem examination tuberculous fowls usually show whitish, grayish, or yellowish spots on internal organs, notably the liver. The prompt disposal of old fowls will eliminate most of the tuberculous infection, but when serious on the farm it is advisable to dispose of the entire flock, to disinfect the poultry houses and premises thoroughly, and then to introduce new stock known to be healthy. Dead fowls should be burned or buried—never fed to hogs.

Only High-Quality Eggs Will Bring Top Prices

If eggs are dirty don't wash them, because washed eggs deteriorate more rapidly than unwashed, and detection of a few washed eggs may cause buyers to penalize the entire lot.

Unusually large quantities of washed eggs are reported this spring, according to the Department of Agriculture. Although dirty eggs are discounted in price, washing eggs will generally cause producers a greater loss.

Only clean, unwashed, high-quality eggs bring top prices. Production of clean eggs is accomplished by keeping hen house floors and nests clean, gathering the eggs daily and keeping the laying hens during muddy weather in dry quarters until afternoon when most of the eggs will have been laid. Producers will find it more profitable to use the soiled eggs on the farm, and to market only the best quality product, the department says.

Qualities Required by Standard Bronze Turkey

A standard bronze turkey should be in color a rich, lustrous hue, which glistens in the sunlight like burnished gold. On the back each feather has a narrow black band, which extends across the end. The primary or flight feathers are black or dark brown, pencilled with white or gray, the colors changing to a bronzy brown. The wing-bows are black, with a brilliant bronze or greenish luster, wing centers bronze, the feathers terminating with a wide, black band. The tail is black and each feather is pencilled with narrow bands of light brown, ending in a broad, black band, with a wide edge of dull white or gray. The legs in the young are usually dark or black, changing with age to a dusky or pinkish purple.

Feed Value of Skimmilk

One hundred pounds of skim milk from a feeding value standpoint only are equal to about 10½ pounds of corn and 7¼ pounds of tankage. However, skim milk when fed to young animals, such as pigs, in addition to the feed value, has other properties. In the first place, skim milk is a product manufactured by nature and is intended for young animals. It is entirely digestible and contains vitamins that are necessary for the growth and health of animals.

FARM NOTES

Flowers help make a house a home.
Be sure that growing poultry is not crowded.

Gather eggs twice daily. Take them to market at least two times a week.

Good seed is as necessary for good yield and good quality of potatoes as in any other crop.

No other crop will yield so much with so little effort in 25 years as will a crop of timber on "useless" land.

Over-pasturing has done inestimable damage to our pastures. Let's stop doing it. Why not let at least a portion of your native grass pasture rest this year?

The Colorado potato beetle is controlled by spraying with two pounds of powdered arsenate of lead to 50 gallons of water. This spray should be put on when the insects first appear. The various worms that feed on the leaves of cabbage can also be controlled by this spray.

Longest Railroad in World

The longest line of railroad in the world is the Trans-Siberian. It runs from Leningrad to Vladivostok, a distance of over 5,500 miles. The largest system of railways operated under one management is the Canadian National. Its total mileage is over 22,000. The largest railway system in the United States is the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul with a total mileage of over 15,000.

He Couldn't Wait

Clever Trick of Fox That Fooled Hounds

A reader sends us this account of a bit of strategy on the part of a fox that he saw when he was a boy in Fayette county, Pennsylvania: "One summer day father and mother and I hitched up the horses and took a ride down to a neighbor's. After dinner I walked to the sugar camp and, as the day was bright and warm, I lay down under a tree on the hillside. I was very quiet; the ground squirrels were playing round; then I saw partridges and their young.
"While I was watching I heard hounds barking. Soon afterward a large red fox came into sight. He would stop and look back and then run on a piece and stop and look back again. About fifty feet below me was a large rock. The fox stopped and looked at it; then he looked back and, taking a run, lit upon the rock. There he sat and watched the hounds, but when they came to where he had left the ground they lost the trail and began to hunt round for it. When they were on the back trail the fox gave another leap and landed away from the rock. The hounds heard him alight, and they came back, but the fox was sitting on the hill, watching them. They did not find his trail, and it seemed as if he were laughing and saying to himself:
"I fooled them that time!"—
Youth's Companion.

Pocket Sundials Once Carried Like Watches

It was not uncommon in the days of Queen Elizabeth for men to carry pocket sundials for the purpose of time telling.
Dials of all kinds were common then, though previous to that time they had been little used in this country, says London Tit-Bits. One of the oldest, erected about the time of Edward the Confessor, is still to be seen over the south door of Kirkdale church, in Yorkshire. It bears the inscription: "This is the sun's marker at every hour, and Hayward made me and Brand the priest."
The fashion for dials began to spread until the whole countryside, particularly in the North and in Scotland, was dotted with them. We see them today in interesting forms at St. Andrews, Melville house, Holyrood castle, Dundas castle, and many other places which are popular resorts of sight-seers.
The legends engraved on some of these old dials are very quaint. One, humble in its opinion of itself and mankind, announces: "Shadows we are, like shadows we depart."
In China and Japan small dials made of boxwood are still carried and consulted by their owners.

Germans Tire of "Joke"

Irritated by the large number of foreign letters bearing the words "Don't Steal" the German postmaster general has announced that these will not be delivered in the future unless they really contain money. If they do not, he rules, such markings constitute "embezzlement." Thefts of notes sent from abroad to poor relatives in Germany became so common during the inflation period that foreigners developed the habit of placing warnings on the outside of letters. Temptation was put constantly before postal employees, as they were obliged to open all incoming letters suspected of containing money in order to trace the receivers and submit them to proper financial control.

Penny Centuries Old

A silver penny struck during the reign of Ethelred II, the Unready, 979-1016, at Sudbury, where at that time there was a royal mint, has been presented to the borough by the town clerk, Mr. T. Miles Brathwaite. It passed into his possession several years ago, and he has ascertained on high authority that it is genuine. The coin has been deposited in the borough technical institute.

Machine Digs Graves

An electrically-driven machine that will dig graves was invented by a Seattle (Wash.) sexton. With a huge auger running inside a casing the dirt is elevated to a carry belt that brings it to the surface. It is claimed that a grave can be excavated in 15 minutes.

"VIOLET ACRES" THEIR TEA-ROOM

By MYRTA DAVIES

(©, 1924, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

GRETTA RAYMOND and Sibyl Kent had always lived across the stone wall from each other, and from the time they were five that wall had been an invitation to one or the other of them to jump over and play in the garden on the other side. There were roses in Gretta's garden, and in Sibyl's ferns and English violets and a great many trees.

When the girls graduated from high school at Seventeen, Sibyl was valedictorian, and Gretta, popular as a Christmas tree and as decked with tinsel, didn't even have an essay. "Slow and steady," the boys called Sibyl, but they asked Gretta to go to the parties. Even her brother, Tom, said she was a good sport.

Sibyl couldn't go to college. Instead, she stayed at home. Sibyl wanted to be friendly, but she didn't have Gretta's knack. "You have to know how, I guess," Sibyl admitted to Gretta one day. "I love folks, but they don't know it."

"I don't care a snap about them, and they don't know that," Gretta had laughed back. You're a simp, Sib, for a fact. And we really can't expect to see each other much after I go away to college. We'll be in a different class more than ever, don't you see?"

Sibyl saw.
The day Gretta actually started bag and baggage for the classiest college in the East Sibyl took over a box of her choicest home-made bonbons tied with purple and gold and an exquisite spray of dark purple violets in a bowl of white tissue and ribbons.

All Gretta said was "Thanks. Working your violets overtime, aren't you? Suppose you'll be calling your tea-room 'Violet Acres' next, won't you?"

A new Independence born that instant in Sibyl's disappointed heart answered, "We hadn't decided, mother and I, but, thank you, Gretta. I believe that's the very name we want. Good-by and good luck."

So "Violet Acres" the tea-room became, and flourished; and on the opposite corner of the lot, Daniel Kent's garage opened at about the same time, grew and flourished.

Cottages began to go up on the opposite shore of the lake, and the cottagers didn't want to cook. Then began the Kents' sent-out meals, whose fame spread till three more helpers were added to the tea-room force and Sibyl asked wistfully, "Some time, maybe, college, father?" And Daniel Kent said: "You're pretty useful here, daughter. Couldn't get along without you. But we'll see."

Vacations, spring, summer and Christmas, were times of revelry at the Raymonds'—revelry in which Sibyl was never asked to share.

"She's just the tea-room girl," Gretta explained to her friends.

"All-fired good-looking," Tom suggested on one of these occasions. "She's got the business end of that tea-room and—friends. Say! Folks know she's with 'em, and it takes!"

"As a business proposition, I suppose it is sound," said Gretta snippily. "Oh, you cat!" Tom retorted. And he did not remind his sister that she herself had flunked every exam at college and would without doubt have to take her freshman year over; neither did he tell her all in regard to Sibyl that he might have told her.

The day came when Daniel Kent said, "We've got a good start, thanks in good part to your brain and brawn, daughter, and there isn't any reason why you can't go to college this fall."

"I shall take the exams for the sophomore class," said Sibyl steadily. She took them and passed, and became a member of Gretta Raymond's class at the university. Gretta had barely passed. Sibyl had come across with flying colors.

There were roses at college commencement, three years later, deep red and white and crimson. Gretta, by popular vote the most popular girl in the college, was showered with them at the class banquet.

The cheers died away and the toast-master rose for the last class vote. "To the best friend in all the world. Little friend of all of us," she introduced the toast, "Little friend of all of us. Shy till you knew her, but always a friend—Sibyl Kent."

Violets fell in purple showers sweet as spring rain round the surprised, grateful face, and, seeing his sister Gretta's face that night, Tom Raymond withheld the previous news that little Sibyl Kent had promised to marry him, after she'd helped her father and mother build the new tea-room.

It was toward the end of the summer after graduation that Gretta herself crossed the wall between the rose garden and the garden of violets and ferns and fine old trees.

"I'm sorry," she told Sibyl out of the clear sky of a summer's thinking over things. "I've been a snob. Popularity doesn't count for much, does it? It goes. Show me how to be a friend. I reckon loving folks is the secret. You said so once. I'd like to help in your tea-room, if you'll let me. Couldn't I serve creams or something? And, Sibyl, I've set out a row of English violets along our side of the wall. Won't they sort of make our places belong together? Dad bought the plants."

So the wall became again an invitation to the Kents and the Raymonds, and the violets grew shyly fragrant on both sides of the wall.

LEACH MOTOR CAR CO.

In the four-cylinder field, the good Maxwell is now duplicating the revolutionary results which the Chrysler Six has already registered among the sixes.

That in brief is the story of the recent developments which, in my opinion, now stamp the Maxwell a most remarkable four-cylinder car.

These new results are so vital and so valuable that they put the good Maxwell far beyond your previous conception of four-cylinder possibilities.

Have you ever driven a four-cylinder car in which the last noticeable trace of vibration is gone?

I don't know that you can appreciate how much this means in new steering, handling and riding ease and far longer life, unless you experience it in the good Maxwell yourself.

As you go along, you will find the Maxwell riding the way you thought only far heavier cars could ride, and displaying a nimbleness that makes you wonder why anyone wants more than Maxwell gives.

Now turn to the other side—costs and upkeep and so on, which are materially reduced by the unusually high proportion of costly alloy steels.

You may not know that Maxwell owners are now averaging 24 miles per gallon of gasoline.

There are a dozen other things I could tell about, but do you know of any four that matches up to Maxwell in these respects?

INJUNCTION

Mary Bennett, Sophia O'Day, Mary E. McClimans, Laura B. Heath and Mrs. Charles H. May, thru their attorney, Charles H. May, of this city, have brought civil action in the common pleas courts of Madison county against the trustees of Pleasant cemetery.

This burial place is located in Darby township, this county, and Pleasant township, Madison county and the action is brought to enjoin the trustees from removing or defacing a marble or granite fence surrounding the burial lot of William Bennett and family. The action also asks the court to enjoin the trustees from lowering the lot from 18 inches to two feet to the level of the surrounding lots or land.

On the Bennett lot are two very large monuments and it is feared that if the land level is lowered that it will undermine these monuments. The Bennett estate left $300 to the cemetery trustees as a perpetual fund for the care and maintenance and ornamentation of this burial lot. A restraining order was granted by Judge Hornbeck.

Alwilda Carpenter, wife of Scott Carpenter, has thru her attorney, A. T. Cordray, brought a similar suit against the trustees to restrain them from removing monuments and ornaments from the burial lot of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Milton M. Thomas. This lot is surrounded with a fence of marble pillars connected up with a sanvanized chain.

Both of the suits were precipitated by the work of the trustees; J. L. Bowers, Scott Redman and Frank Winfough, together with the sexton, Job Renick, of Pleasant cemetery, when they removed some of the ornaments on the burial lot of the heirs of Frank Hicks. Some of these ornaments have been on the Hicks lot for the past fifty years.

Liquor Case Reversed.

In the case of the state against William Miller in which he was convicted of selling intoxicating liquor, Judge Curtin reversed the finding of Mayor Renick on the ground that the judgment was against the weight of evidence. Barton Walters represented Mr. Miller.

Case Settled.

On May 30, of this year Mrs. Clara Beatty Brown and daughter, Doris Louise Brown, riding in a buggy drawn by a horse was killed at a grade crossing on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad at Grove City. The railroad company has effected a settlement in the probate court by paying the funeral expenses, loss of horse and buggy and court costs a total of $800.

FIND CHILDREN GROW FASTER IN THE FALL

Maximum Gain Between August and September.

New York.—Children between the ages of four and thirteen, both girls and boys, grow faster and better during August and the three following months than at any other period of the year, according to results of careful study into the question of child nutrition by the New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor.

Boys make 55.3 per cent and girls 50.8 per cent of the total yearly growth between August 1 and December 1. The period of maximum gain is in the late summer and early fall, and the period of minimum advancement falls in the late spring and early summer.

While the same tendency holds for both boys and girls, it is most marked among the girls.

Months	Boys		Girls
	Av. gain in lbs.	Pct. of annual gain	Av. gain in lbs.	Pct. of annual gain
January	.67	9.9	.53	8.3
February	.51	7.6	.43	6.7
March	.43	6.4	.36	5.6
April	.43	6.4	.34	5.3
May	.25	3.7	— .05	— .8
June	.06	.9	.08	1.3
July	.26	3.9	.35	5.4
August	.89	13.2	.79	12.3
September	1.01	15.0	1.06	16.6
October	1.00	14.8	1.00	15.6
November	.84	12.3	.89	13.6
December	.51	7.6	.53	8.4
Total yearly	6.74	100.0	6.41	100.0
Aver. monthly	.56	8.3	.53	8.3

xin May the girls showed an average loss of .05 pound. This is equivalent to 0.8 per cent of the total gain.

The report says: "The rate of growth in both height and weight over a given period of time is quite as important, in judging a child's state of development as his attained stature and weight at any given period. Physicians, teachers, school nurses and nutrition workers must rely on the gains made during short periods of from three to six months to determine whether the child is doing well, for obviously all healthy children must be expected to gain steadily in both height and weight."

Winning Glider Built of Scrapped Wire and Tin

Koenigsberg, Germany.—Old broomsticks, baling wire and scraps of tin salvaged from milk and bully beef cans were chiefly used in constructing the glider in which Ferdinand Schulz in an experimental flight remained in the air eight hours forty-two minutes and eight seconds and thereby established a world's record for heavier than air machines without motors.

The plane was constructed by Schulz during odd moments when he was not busy teaching a school class here in east Prussia, which is his home. The flight took place at Rossitten.

Schulz appeared last year with a glider made of hop poles and scrap tin, but his machine was rejected by the technical committee and he was not allowed to compete in the meet on the theory that it was unsafe.

Schulz says he could have remained in the air much longer had he made proper preparations for an extended flight. He had neglected to take along gloves, and was in his shirt sleeves; toward afternoon he felt the cold keenly. Finally, he says, he became so hungry that he decided to land and as he did not have a watch with him, he was most surprised when informed he had established a record.

American Cities' Debts Grow Billion a Year

New York.—The bonded indebtedness of municipalities of the United States continues to increase, and new securities are being issued at the rate of about a billion dollars annually, according to a commentary upon the debt of more than two hundred cities by C. E. Rightor, chief accountant, Detroit bureau of government research. A tabulation gives the classified debt of the various cities, the net bonded debt and the per capita debt on January 1, 1924.

The average per capita debt of all cities of 2,500 or more is $70.80, but the per capita debt ranges from $25.62 for Norfolk to $10.96 for Quincy, Ill., omitting Washington, D. C., which has only a few old bond issues outstanding. The per capita indebtedness in general is below that of thirteen principal Canadian cities, in which it ranges from $363.05 in Edmonton, Alberta, to $112.02 in Hamilton, Ontario.

Efficiency in Use of Fuel Shows Increase

Washington.—Efficiency in use of fuel by public utility power plants has increased 33 1-3 per cent in the last four years, according to a statement issued by the Department of Interior, which shows that a ton of coal in 1919 produced 625 kilowatt hours of electricity, compared with 835 hours in 1923. The total amount of electricity generated increased in this period from 39,000,000,000 kilowatt hours to 55.7 billion kilowatt hours.

To Climb Canadian Peaks

Edmonton, Alberta.—An attempt to scale Mount Bobson will be made this summer by the Alpine club of Canada. Arrangements also are being made for an expedition to scale Mount Logan, Canada's highest peak, in 1925.
